FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL

Parliament : Magisterial Reform : Farmers and Transport : Debt : Work for Shipyards : Politics and Religion

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Saturday.

THE Northern legislators have had a short autumn recess; for a new session of Parliament was opened within a week after the termination of the old session. The new session is the second of the fourth Parliament elected in Northern Ireland. In some respects the new session will be as important as any of its predecessors, and more important than some of them. At least two controversial bills were announced in the speech read by the Governor—the Magistrates Bill and the new Transport Bill. The Transport Bill will have far-reaching effects upon the trade and commerce of the Northern area, and in the circumstances it will not be surprising if it is subjected to a good deal of criticism.

The Government, in their proposals, intend to follow closely the lines of the comprehensive report submitted by Sir Felix Pole. This report recommended the establishment of a Transport Board to control all road transport, and a pooling arrangement between the road and rail services. It is, in effect, a complete monopoly and co-ordination of road and rail services, designed with the object of providing an adequate return to the operators, and at the same time a measure of control in the public interest.

The Magistrates

The bill to curtail the judicial functions of the Northern Justices of the Peace has been issued. It will be studied with great care, both by the magistrates and the public. The magistrates are not to be deprived of all their judicial functions. They still will be able to try and convict in cases of drunkenness and vagrancy "out of Petty Sessions," but all their other judicial functions will be transferred to Resident Magistrates. Justices of the Peace will cease to sit at Quarter Sessions and adjudicate with the County Court Judges. They are, in fact, to be swept from both the Quarter Sessions and the Petty Sessions. The latter Court of Summary Jurisdiction is to be composed entirely of the Resident Magistrates sitting alone or two R.M.'s in cases under the Civil Authorities Act (political offences). Justices of the Peace will continue to conduct the preliminary investigation of indictable offences "out of Petty Sessions"—that is, to take depositions and to dispose of the cases by refusing informations, returning for trial, or remand. They will still act on prison visiting committees and be able to make orders for the destruction of unsound meat and the disposal of seized fish and game. The Petty Sessions and Quarter Sessions Bench, as previously understood, cease to exist, and in the former case "The People's Court" will be dominated by paid, instead of unpaid, magistrates.

Such a drastic change will not be allowed to take place without vigorous protest from some of the Government's strongest supporters. The concentration of judicial, as well as administrative, power in the hands of officials is in essence undesirable, particularly as the R.M.'s are appointed by the political, rather than the judicial power.

The only good features in the bill are the provisions to relieve the County Courts of many debt and ejectment cases at less expense to litigants. The other parts of the bill are much too drastic.

Farmers and Transport

The Ulster Farmers' Union, comprising over a hundred branches, with a membership of 15,000 farmers, have issued an important memorandum upon the proposed Transport Bill. The farmers do not desire to deny transport services of the fundamental principle which agriculture itself is seeking to secure through marketing legislation—a price that will meet costs. They are apprehensive, however, that the plan set out in Sir Felix Pole's report, which the Government is using as a basis for the new legislation, may swing the pendulum too far by eliminating all competition in transport services. If no competition is to exist between road goods services they contend that it should continue between road and rail services. They also suggest that farm lorries should be left outside the scope of the new legislation, and that farmers should be permitted to carry to market, not only their own farm produce, but that of neighbours. They urge that farm produce and requirements, such as meals and manure, should be placed upon a low scale in the classification of goods in the new transport services, and insure for agriculture the fullest advantage of cheap transport by rail and road. The charge for the carriage of milk, they suggest, should be vested solely in the Joint Milk Council, and not in any Transport Board.

Special consideration also is desired in the taxation of farm lorries, having regard to the fact that these vehicles are only used several days each week.

Some of these claims are reasonable, but others can hardly be conceded, without injuring other interests, and the Government will be expected to keep in view first the public interest.

Northern Debt

The public debt of Northern Ireland at the end of the last financial year was £8,788,234, according to the finance accounts which have just been issued. This includes £1,990,000 in respect of Ulster 3½ per Cent. Stock, £3,918,194 Ulster Saving Certificates, £510,000 in Treasury bills outstanding, and advances from Government Loans Fund outstanding amounting to £2,370,039. In addition there were contingent liabilities amounting to £11,102,638 under the Loans Guarantee Act for ship construction and other capital expenditure calculated to promote employment in Northern Ireland, £3,532,008 contingent liability under the Government Loan and Exchequer Provision Act in respect of the 4½ per Cent. and the 5 per Cent. Ulster Loan Stock. Other contingent liabilities are £862,100 under the Electricity (Supply) Act to the Electricity Board of Northern Ireland, and £46,864 for the purchase of live-stock and for the purchase of seeds and artificial fertilisers.

The contingent liabilities are not expected to involve any considerable loss, if any, to Northern Ireland, so that a public debt of under nine million sterling cannot be regarded as excessive, and is less than one year's revenue of the province.

Other interesting figures in the account include a sum of £4,150 for statutory salaries charged on the Consolidated Fund, of which £850 is for the Speaker of the Senate, £1,700 for the Speaker of the Commons, and £1,600 for the Comptroller and Auditor-General.

Although Northern Ireland got a gift of the land annuities amounting to over £600,000 per annum, a sum of £284,234 is deducted from the residuary share of reserved taxes payable to Northern Ireland in respect of the "new" land purchase annuities that completed land purchase in the North. There is also deducted £222,906 for R.I.C. pensions and £1,600 for portion of the salary of the Governor of Northern Ireland. Could Northern Ireland not secure the advantages of a loan conversion scheme?

The Shipyards

The announcement that five more vessels are to be constructed at Belfast has given great satisfaction, not only in shipbuilding circles, but in Belfast generally. This will bring the total number of ships under construction in Belfast up to seventeen, of a total tonnage of 188,000. The five new vessels consist of three for the Blue Star Line of approximately 11,000 tons each, and two for the Union Castle Line of 13,000 tons, intended for the line's intermediate service to South Africa. All the vessels are to be built by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, who are at present constructing two 25,000-ton liners for the Union Castle Line's passenger and mail service, and two of 8,000 tons each for the refrigerated service.

The Queen's Island yards of Messrs. Harland and Wolff at Belfast have more work in hand or in prospect than any other shipyard at present in Great Britain or Ireland.

On Thursday the second of the three Empire food ships built by this firm for the Blue Star Line was launched by the Governor-General of New Zealand, Lord Bledisloe, by electric cable from Government House, Wellington—12,000 miles away. Much of the new construction in Belfast shipyards in the past few years has been for Empire trade routes, and may be attributed directly to the beneficent effect of the Ottawa Agreement. The five new ships will ensure a period of employment in many of the shipbuilding trades, and the money disbursed will assist the Belfast shopkeepers, who are experiencing some of their former prosperity.

Politics and Religion

It seems inevitable that politics and religion should be constantly intermingled in Northern Ireland. There will be a good deal of general agreement and sympathy with the statement by Mr. R. N. McNeill, M.P. for Queen's University, in the debate upon an amendment to the Address in the Northern Parliament. He said that he was expressing not only his own view, but that of many graduates of the University, when he declared that it was high time that side issues of Protestants versus Catholics should have no part in their deliberations in the House, or, indeed, elsewhere throughout Northern Ireland.

Neither of the two larger parties in the Northern Parliament can be held entirely blameless in the matter. There are many Catholics in Northern Ireland who are not out to seek the destruction of the State, but are anxious to help forward the prosperity of their neighbours and themselves in public positions and on local boards, while there are many thousands of ex-Service men who have proved their anxiety to serve their country as part of the British Commonwealth. A little more give and take and regard for the feelings and convictions of one another would do much to sweeten public life in the North and prevent unnecessary bitterness. There is no good reason, for instance, why not one representative of the minority should fail to be appointed upon either the Unemployment Board or the new Milk Council. Surely one-third of the population is entitled to some representation. On the other hand, Nationalists are disposed to create resentment by stressing grievances without giving credit when favourable appointments are made. Listening to their speeches one would imagine that there were no Catholic judges, magistrates or police (officers and men) and civil servants of their faith in Northern Ireland, which they know perfectly well is not correct.

AUCTION OF BONDED WHISKEY

On to-morrow (Tuesday) Mr. W. J. Heron, P.C., will offer for auction 20 hogsheads of John Jameson and Son's whiskey, bonded at Distiller's Stores, Halpin's row, Dublin. The sale is for an executor's account, and will take place at 188 Pearse street, Dublin, at 1.30 o'clock.

GOLF

THE T. M. HEALY CUP FINAL

Cecil West, playing from scratch, made a great effort to regain the cup presented by the late Mr. T. M. Healy, when Governor-General, to the Royal Dublin Club, but in the final on Saturday he was beaten on the last green by a hole by R. Ryan, one of the U.C.D. members of the club.

West in his progress to the final was set to concede as many as thirteen and fourteen strokes to opponents—all told, he gave away 54, and on Saturday Ryan received five. Ryan made good use of them at four holes; so much so that he was never down, but it was a fine match all the way.

West had his chances, but lost a few on the greens. At the eleventh, which he reached in two, and where Ryan was out of bounds, he took three putts to only halve it in 5, Ryan running down a long putt, and he had another chance at the thirteenth, with Ryan out of bounds. The turning point was the sixteenth. Ryan's great tee shot to the sixteenth was laid at the hole side, and he won it in 2 for dormy. West took the seventeenth, but he missed a putt of about a yard at the home green to bring the match to the nineteenth.

DIEGEL DEFEATS SHUTE IN MELBOURNE

Leo Diegel, who tied for second place in the Open Championship in 1930, won the Centenary Professional Championship at Melbourne on Saturday. In the final over thirty-six holes he defeated Densmore Shute, the former Open champion, by 2 and 1. Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood did not compete.

MOTOR CYCLING

A SEVERE TEST IN BUSH CUP TRIAL

FINAL SECTION COVERED IN DARKNESS

THE open reliability trial of the Dublin University Motor Cycle and Light Car Club on Saturday for the Bush Cup was in keeping with the traditions of the club and the competition. Commemorating the association with the club of a one-time member now in Alaska, who shone in competitions of the sporting type, it was not inappropriate that the forty-two miles' route should have been a severe one. It was almost impossible to keep to the scheduled time, and in the latter stages the riders were so far behind their schedules that the concluding section was covered in darkness. Consequently, the majority of the riders missed the final observed section. It is possible the section may be cut out, and the trial regarded as finishing at Glencree.

The difficulty of keeping time was added to by the fact that almost at the start of the route the riders, in common with other motorists, were stopped by the police and their licences examined.

In view of the possible bearing of the trial on the result of the Inter-club Championship of the Motor Cycle Union, several Belfast riders competed. Duffin and Sinclair were among the finishers, but Vincent, Stewart and McFarlane had not reached the finishing point when the thirty minutes' time limit had expired.

Those who got to Oldbawn were:—

S. G. Campbell, J. Sinclair, Belfast; A. E. Moore, M. G. Hogan, J. G. Burney, T. Considine, C. W. Duffin, Belfast; J. C. Mullard, H. Col. Bracey, R. C. Yeates, C. H. W. Manders, E. I. Gibson, A. H. Archer, C. E. Atkinson, M. Barrington, S. Moran, H. D. Stevenson.

There were seventy-five starters.

THE LEINSTER DINNER

A company that filled the large diningroom of Jury's Hotel, and which included the Lord Mayor and a number of ladies, enjoyed a very pleasant evening at the annual dinner of the Leinster Motor Cycle and Car Club on Saturday. Mr. J. J. Shiel, the president, was in the chair. In an interval the prizes were presented by the Lord Mayor, who also drew the annual raffle.

After the toast of "Ireland," "Continued Success to the Leinster Club" was submitted by Mr. T. W. Murphy. He said that the club continued to occupy the position it had held for many years as the leading sporting organisation of the city, and, indeed, of the country. Its sporting programme was the most comprehensive of any Irish club, and every competition that was announced had been brought to a successful issue. It had entered into the realm of car sport, and the success of the event on the Skerries circuit suggested that it would become as important an event in car sport as the club's 200 miles' race had long been in the motor cycle field.

Replying to the toast, Mr. Shiel said that the Leinster Club was a well-oiled and well-handled machine, and its success was due to the enthusiasm and work of its members. Reviewing Ireland's part in the international field of sport, Mr. Shiel referred to the success of the Irish teams in the international six days' trial in Germany, and congratulated the team which brought the International Vase to Ireland for the second successive year.

Other toasts included "The Authorities," proposed by Mr. Hutchinson, and acknowledged by Colonel Broy, Chief Commissioner of the Civic Guard, Superintendent Walsh and Mr. McWilliams, of the St. John Ambulance Brigade; and "The Visitors," proposed by Mr. J. Irvine, and replied to by Captain Williamson and Mr. S. Russell, of the Ulster M.C.C.

TIME TRIAL IN DERRY

A time trial, under the auspices of the North of Ireland Club, was held on Saturday, starting and finishing at the Guildhall, Londonderry, the course being via Limavady, Claudy and Donema, a distance of 50 miles. Twelve cars and six motor cycles competed. The results were:—Motor cars—1, W. Mason (Standard special 16 h.p.); 2, A. McCombe (Hillman Minx 10 h.p.); 3, Messrs. R. W. Barron and S. Edwards (Singer 9). Motor cycles—1, A. E. Beale (350 c.c. Excelsior); 2, Northern Motors (R. Heaney) (250 c.c. James); 3, T. Ramsay (350 c.c. Royal Enfield).

GAELIC GAMES

VINCENT DE PAUL TOURNAMENT

FOOTBALL MATCHES AT CROKE PARK

(BY PAT'O.)

Dolphins ..... 2-6 St. Joseph's 2-2
Erin's Hopes ..... 5-0 Finngallians 0-3

Dolphins had a very strong team out for their replay against St. Joseph's at Croke Park yesterday. Playing good football from the start the South City men were around Moore's goal for five minutes without a score. When Wellington took a pass from R. Beggs and pointed for Joseph's, Dolphins quickly replied. Macken, J. Beggs and O'Connell ran up points for Dolphins and Allen raced right through for a good goal. The Cavanaghs held Wellington and Byrne in check, and the best football of the first half came from this quartette. P. Cavanagh went upfield and shot a long-range point. Close on half-time Newman showed pace on Joseph's left wing and his second shot reached the Dolphin net. Half-time score:—Dolphins, 1 goal 4 points; St. Joseph's, 1 goal 1 point.

Dolphins had the better of the third quarter when Macken finished a good movement of Kirwan's for a goal. When St. Joseph's brightened up they had a lot to recover. Kelly and Beggs played good football at this stage, and a point from a free by Beggs brought new interest. Dolphins continued to play the better football, and O'Neill and P. Cavanagh stretched their lead. Close on full-time Moore went up-field for St. Joseph's, and he took a swift centre of Wellington's to drive to the net. When Joseph's threatened to equalise F. Cavanagh came to the rescue, and Dolphins had something in hand when they qualified for the second round.

ERIN'S HOPES PLAY WELL

When they finished on level terms at Swords, Erin's Hopes were lucky to hold Finngallians. Yesterday the North Dublin team was depleted as a result of some club difference. They had difficulty in fielding a team, but when substitutes came along it was found that Finngallians had sixteen men, and the referee (Mr. F. Walsh) brought both teams to the centre. As a result of his count a Finngallian player was sent to the sideline.

Erin's Hopes were masters of the situation throughout. In the first minutes Slattery, Curran, O'Dowd and Lehane had the flag-keepers busy. St. Patrick's College team, though lighter than last year, are fast and clever. McNicoll held off all the Finngallian raids, and Lehane paved the way for several scores by O'Dowd and Curran. Near the end of the half Slattery and Lehane netted from close range.

Finngallians played better in the second half, but at no stage did they threaten Erin's Hopes' big lead. O'Neill, Griffin and Bissett had points for the losers, and Hopes were taking things easy in the last quarter, where Lehane had a good goal from a pretty, combined movement. Erin's Hopes and Dolphins will go well in the later stages of the Cup.

IRISH NOMINATORS AND THE WATERLOO CUP

The Irish nominators for the Waterloo Cup at Altcar on Wednesday, February 13, and following days, are:—Messrs. J. W. Fullerton (Ramelton, Donegal), D. J. Gorey (Kilkenny), Thos. Harte (Kildare), H. McAlinden (Belfast), P. J. O'Sullivan (Limerick) and J. Shaw (Belfast).

Mr. Fullerton, the doyen of the cup nominators, has a couple of puppies in training with Harold Wright, but should he not run one of them, he will, owing to the import duty, fill his nomination with one from an English kennel. Mr. Gorey had a few in training on the other side last season, but it is most unlikely that any of the Irish nominators will be represented by their own dogs except Messrs. Shaw and McAlinden, who are not affected by the import duty on greyhounds going into England.

Financial News & Notes

LONDON STOCK MARKET FEATURES

SOME ADVERSE INFLUENCES

HOARDING GOLD IN LONDON

FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Sunday.

Two main reasons can be adduced for the duller tendency of Stock markets last week, and especially the set-back in gilt-edged securities. References by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the question of income tax provided a cold douche for those who had been confident that the next Budget would announce a further remission of direct taxation, and, in addition, a disposition to realise profits by professional speculators in the Funds was accentuated by a certain amount of selling by the general public, induced by the high level to which prices had risen. The report on Indian constitutional reform was scarcely an influence, and Indian Government stocks displayed rather more firmness than British Funds. As to the income tax question, it is impossible to speak with any certainty yet. The receipts of the most prolific part of the financial year have yet to be received, and, despite the increasing expenditure to which Mr. Chamberlain referred, revenue may exceed expectations. When the last Budget was announced it was generally held that the Chancellor had been unduly conservative in framing the estimates of receipts for the current year.

STRENGTHENING FACTORS

In favour of gilt-edged stocks is the probability that cheap money will continue for a considerable time yet. What is described as the technical state of the market for the Funds has been strengthened; for undoubtedly there was rather too much speculation a short time ago. Consequently, fresh buying will have the greater effect upon prices, and the chances are that the great banks, insurance companies and other important financial institutions will be compelled to increase their holdings of War Loan and similar stocks. After all, there is still a big margin between the return upon Treasury bills or that obtainable from short loans in Lombard street and the yield afforded by stocks, and this would be so even if the credit of the British Government improved to a 2½ per cent. basis—assuming no material change in the monetary situation.

CONDITIONS IN AMERICA

Those interested in the dollar shares dealt in on London, such as United States Steel, Radio Corporation and Hydro-Electric, are probably surprised that prices show so little firmness in view of what is regarded as the better outlook in the United States. There is more confidence now that the dollar will not be further de-valued or that President Roosevelt will resort to fresh monetary experiments for, if reports from the other side are to be trusted, he is now more inclined to listen to business men and agriculturists than to professors of economics. The American Treasury recently made an order giving greater freedom to exports of capital, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is now receiving much more money than it pays out, with the result that it has $500,000,000 available for expenditure on unemployment relief.

NEED FOR INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT

It may prove also that the loan of £2,000,000 which New York bankers are reported to have made to Finland, in conjunction with the credit granted to Belgium to enable the latter country to remain on the gold standard, marks the recommencement of foreign lending by America. If so, the development is of some significance, for it is usually held that if the creditor nations were willing to help the necessitous countries financially, the world would be a step nearer to recovery from the universal depression. But a preliminary to foreign lending on the part of Great Britain would be an international agreement in regard to currencies and exchange. Unfortunately, the leading nations do not appear to be at all willing to arrange this, preferring to continue on the lines of economic nationalism.

THE HOARDING OF GOLD

A leading Stock Exchange firm has issued a pamphlet in order to show the folly of hoarding gold, taking for its text a statement in The Times last month that stocks of hoarded gold in London have continued to grow, and are now probably at a peak figure. It was added that the excess of imports of gold into this country over exports has persisted during the current year, and to date amounts to about £116,000,000. This follows a net import of £191,000,000 for 1933, and the amount of gold bought by the Bank of England in the current year has amounted to no more than £1,271,000. In order to strengthen its case, the writer of the pamphlet shows the present result of an investment on September 30, 1931, of £1,000 in (1) English equities, (2) British Government securities, and (3) gold. For this purpose, seven of the leading Industrials are taken—namely, Associated Portland Cement, Courtaulds, Woolworths, Imperial Tobacco, British Insulated, Imperial Chemical Industries Ord., and Dunlop Rubber.

AN INTERESTING COMPARISON

It is shown that against the average capital value of the seven Industrials on September 30, 1931, of £1,000, the figure had risen by September 28, 1934, to £2,084, while a gross income of £102 had been received, making a total of £2,276, thus showing an increase of 127.6 per cent. The Government Funds selected are 4 per cent. Funding, 2½ per cent. Consols and War Loan, allowance being made, of course, for the reduction in the interest rate of the last-named security. A sum of £1,000 invested in these three stocks in September, 1931, became worth £1,356 by September last, and, in addition, £145 gross income had been received, making a total of £1,501, an increase of 50.1 per cent. Had the £1,000 been invested in gold, the holding would now be worth £1,335 10s., equal to an increase of 33.55 per cent. Over the period of three years, therefore, the most profitable investment has been in English equities, and the least profitable in gold.

FUTURE POSSIBILITIES

Similar statistics are given relating to an investment of 100,000 francs and of $5,000. It is apparently the opinion of the writer of the pamphlet that, despite the rise in the price of most equities, it would still be profitable to invest in these rather than in gold. This is extremely probable, for, even if Industrials showed no further appreciation, the holder would be certain of a return on his money, whereas a holding of gold would give no interest at all, and, perhaps, over the next few years the metal is more likely to fall than rise in sterling value. In the case of Government securities, the present purchaser should reckon upon some depreciation of capital during the next few years because the period may see a rise in money rates. This, however, might be offset by a reduction in taxation, by which the net yield afforded by all fixed interest securities would be automatically increased. Dearer money would come if trade became much more active, a development that would be helpful to equities.

OIL SHARES

One of the dullest markets of the Stock Exchange for a considerable time past has been that for Oil Shares, which have reflected the exceedingly unsatisfactory conditions in the petroleum industry of America, due to the fierce price-cutting war that has been in progress there for many months past. Great difficulty has been experienced, so far, in fixing up a price agreement in the States, mainly because of the big production of "hot oil"—that is, oil produced in excess of the legal figure. Recent reports encourage the hope that better conditions will be established on the other side shortly, and if this hope is realised Oil shares will enjoy a considerable recovery. Brokers have lately reported well-informed buying of Shell Transport Ordinary, not for immediate dividends, but as a lock-up for the next year or two. The shares are at present quoted about 2½, but as recently as last year they stood at nearly 2½, and in 1931 they touched 3½. Even on the basis of the dividend of 7½ per cent., tax free, paid for 1933, which is expected to be repeated for this year, "Shells" pay for their keep, for the yield, at 2½, is practically 3½ per cent. net, equal to 9d. over 4½ per cent., less tax. It is scarcely necessary to say that the financial position is exceedingly strong, with large holdings of first-class securities.

MANCHESTER MARKETS REVIEW

CONDITIONS QUIET

FROM OUR COMMERCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

There has been something in the nature of a lull in trading conditions in the provision trade in this centre during the past week, and, with one or two exceptions, prices of most commodities are rather on the easy side. Shipments of butter and bacon from Denmark and Sweden to Northern ports showed some falling off, but increased consignments of eggs were reported. With regard to bacon, there is little new to report in the general position, though buyers showed some disposition to hold off and operate for current requirements only. The market closed steady, with spot prices for Irish unchanged, and at the weekly meeting of the Manchester Bacon Committee it was decided to make no official alteration in English or Continental cures. The Danish official quotation for butter has this week been wired ten kroner lower, and "top" now stands at 200 kroner per 100 kilos. At the corresponding period of last year the figure was also 200 kroner, and in 1932 190 kroner.

BETTER INQUIRY FOR BUTTER.

A better inquiry was reported for Continental makes at the lower prices ruling, and Colonials also closed steady at a reduction of 2s. to 5s. per cwt., as compared with last week. There is still a great disparity in prices ruling for Colonial and Danish. Prices of the latter, however, have been upheld because Germany has been a very active buyer. Spot supplies of Irish creameries are being drawn from cold store, and prices are more or less nominal in character. The estimated shipments from New Zealand for October, November, and December this year are 34,000 tons, against 42,177 tons last year. Gradings of New Zealand butter in October very slightly exceeded last year's corresponding figure, although the total quantity graded in the first three months of the current season was two per cent. smaller than a year earlier. At the end of last month the quantity in store was rather heavier than at the same date last year. Production in Australia continues to increase, and is slightly larger than in the same period of 1933. The egg market generally rules quietly steady, and it is generally felt that, so far as prices are concerned, top has been reached, and that production has touched its lowest. Supplies of fresh Irish eggs to this centre are very irregular and prices nominal in consequence, but cold-stored are in steady consumptive demand, with little variation in prices.

LIVE STOCK.

Taken in the aggregate, all classes of live stock to the Manchester Cattle market on Tuesday showed an increase, although both Irish fat and dairy cows were penned in smaller numbers. In fat cattle demand was confined mainly to best sorts, which ruled firm, rougher descriptions meeting with a slow sale. Good lambs were also harder to buy. Supplies at the Manchester Pig market were in rather smaller compass. Handyweight cutters were in fair demand at steady figures, but sows met with a slow trade. With one or two exceptions, business at the Manchester Meat market has been of a dragging character during the past week, and there was a slow finish. With the exception of home-killed pork, which was the turn dearer, prices closed on the easy side.

Fair supplies of game and dead poultry have been available during the past week, and, though business has been rather quiet, prices have ruled steady. It is interesting to note that the Imports Duties Advisory Committee announce that they have decided not to make any recommendation at the present time in respect of the application for the imposition of an additional import duty on dead turkeys; but they propose to give further consideration to the matter early next year.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Alvis Car and Engineering

The directors of the Alvis Car and Engineering Company announce that, as the result of the satisfactory trading for the present year to date, they feel justified in declaring an interim dividend of 5 per cent., less tax, on the Ordinary shares, payable on December 15 to holders registered November 30. They recommend that the capital be increased to £300,000 by the creation of 400,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each. At an extraordinary meeting to be held on December 4 the chairman will report upon the directors' proposals regarding the new shares. The authorised and issued capital of the company is £200,000 in 100,000 7½ per cent. Participating Preference of £1 each and 400,000 Ordinary of 5s. The latter were dealt with on Friday at 11s. 7½d. For 1933 the Ordinary received a dividend of 7½ per cent. after a lapse of three years.

Cement Development

The Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers and the British Portland Cement Manufacturers (known as the "Blue Circle" Group) announce that in anticipation of an increased demand for Portland cement, which it is confidently believed will result from the Government's policy of insisting upon slum clearances all over the country, as well as from greater activity in constructional work generally, they have embarked upon an extensive programme of works enlargement at various points. These extensions will materially increase the capacity for production, notably in the Thames district, from which London and the Home Counties draw their supplies, and which also serves the coastwise and export markets, while the large works at Hope, in Derbyshire, which supply Lancashire, Yorkshire and adjoining districts, are being more than doubled. Extensions are also in progress at their factories in the South of England, South Wales and Northern Ireland. It is anticipated that the whole of this increased production will be available in the early months of next year.

Gold Fields' Big Improvement

Profits of the Consolidated Gold Fields of South Africa, which derives its revenue mainly from the New Consolidated Gold Fields, rose by £192,288 to £659,571 in the year to June 30 last. A final dividend of 2s. 9d. per share is proposed on the £3,251,310 of Ordinary capital, making, with the interim of 1s. 3d. p.r share, 20 per cent. for the twelve months, as against 15 per cent. in 1932-33, and nothing in the two years preceding. Dividends, including the 6 per cent. on the First and Second Preference, absorb £657,410, leaving £2,161 to be added to the sum brought in, making £19,539 to carry forward. Receipts of the subsidiary amounted to £1,388,060 compared with £933,841, and comprises dividends, profits realised on sale of investments, commission, and other items. Profits on the year's operations were £451,964 higher at £1,327,076, plus £114,754 brought in. Dividends on the six per cent. First and Second Preference shares require £140,842, South African income tax appropriation is £11,450 (against £13,182), reserve for depreciation £100,000 (nil), and for U.K. income tax £210,000 (£150,000), while £500,000 (against £200,000) is transferred to general reserve. The ordinary dividend is brought up to 4s. per £1 share, amounting, less tax, to £517,168. The balance of £162,970 is carried forward.

The investments appear in the balance sheet at £6,235,994 (against £5,159,250 at June 30, 1933), and include British Government Securities, £652,825. These, it is stated, show, on market prices current at June 30 and on an estimate of unquoted investments, a further unrealised profit. The reserve stands at £700,000. The activity and expansion of the gold mining industry following abandonment of the gold standard by the Union is strikingly illustrated in an analysis of results of operations of the producers of the Witwatersrand since 1932 by 53,115,000 tons, or 56 per cent., the average value being lower by 1.2 dwt. per ton, due to the inclusion of low grade ore. The tonnage milled has advanced by 4,460,000 to 4, while the total working profit has doubled, notwithstanding an average reduction in recovery grade of 1.03 dwt. per ton milled. Up to the present the average working cost shows an increase of only 2d. per ton, equal to 1 per cent.

Oil Companies and their Funded Debts

Following the recent example of other leading American oil companies to reduce or eliminate their funded debts, the Socony Vacuum Corporation will retire on February 15 two of its bond issues amounting to $28,197,000. The issues consist of $14,000,000 of Standard Oil Company of New York 4½ per cent. Debentures and $14,197,000 of 5 per cent. Bonds of the General Petroleum Company, which is a subsidiary concern on the Pacific Coast. Both issues are due for redemption in 1940. The necessary funds will be obtained by loans from banks, maturing half-yearly, at substantially reduced rates of interest. On the completion of the transaction the Socony Vacuum Corporation will have reduced its funded debt to $50,000,000.

Big Mexican Order for Pullman

Pullman, Inc., announce that they have received an order from the National Railways of Mexico for 1,000 box cars and 200 steel gondola cars.

The Outlook

The City has been perplexed by the Chancellor's cryptic remark about the taxation outlook, but, after consideration, decided not to take it too seriously. Mr. Chamberlain can hardly be blamed for reminding Parliament that, as expenditure is piled up, the chances of taxation relief are correspondingly diminished, but this must be taken in conjunction with Mr. Runciman's hint in August, when he expressed the hope that a little more would come off the income tax—if only to make up for the conversion of War Loan (writes The Sunday Times). Despite a good deal of profit-taking, the undertone of markets is quite sound, and on any set-back fresh buyers come forward for shares with prospects. This applies to Brewery shares, those that have already declared their results being exchanged in some cases for others whose reports are still to come. Among the latter one of the most important is the Ind Coope and Allsopp report—the first since the combine, and there is every reason to expect that it will make a good showing. South African and other Gold shares are hesitating, but the imperious necessity of obtaining higher yields assures a steady demand for the dividend-payers. The policy of reducing the average grade of ore milled is undoubtedly sound. But the current month's profits look like being computed at a price for gold below the £7 figure of the previous month, in which case the mines would be justified in raising the grade.

Allotment of American Copper Sales

Customs smelters having completed their sales quotas of 11,000 tons for November, producers of primary copper hereafter will be allotted the sales of copper for the remainder of the month. It is estimated that perhaps 4,000 tons will be so allotted. It was reported on October 31 that producers of primary copper had agreed to continue through November the suspension of their sales allocations, the sales being allocated to secondary producers until their quotas were filled, when primary producers would resume sales.

Anglo-Oriental Mining

Shareholders of the Anglo-Oriental Mining Corporation are offered shares in Anglo-African Selected Investments, in which company the Corporation's interest in Tano Gold Dredging is vested. Shareholders of the Corporation are thus offered an indirect participation in Tano Gold Dredging. The lists will remain open up to and including December 31. Three hundred thousand shares of Tano Gold Dredging have been sold to Anglo-African Selected Investments in exchange for a similar number of shares in the capital of the latter. These shares are now offered as of right to members of Anglo-Oriental registered November 21 in the proportion of three shares of Anglo-African for every 40 in the Corporation at 6s. per share, payable in full on application. Anglo-African Selected Investments registered on May 23, 1934, with a capital of £300,000, divided into 3,000,000 shares of 2s. each, of which 1,300,000 shares (£130,000) are now in issue. The directors of Anglo-African Selected Investments are of opinion that the successful development of the properties owned by the companies in which their company is principally interested indicates that its present shareholdings are likely to prove of great potential value, quite apart from the concessions held under option by the company itself.

Charterhouse Increased Profits

The Charterhouse Investment Trust, Ltd., has had an exceptionally good year. Net profit, after charging all expenses, amounted to £227,068, as compared with £77,236, and the distribution of 2s. per share on the £1,000,000 of Ordinary capital compares with 1s. 3d. in the previous year. The company combines investment business with that of a financial issuing house, and in its nine years of existence has been responsible for issues and placings totalling over £22,600,000 (says The Observer). Its success has been largely due to the careful husbanding of its large financial resources. The present balance-sheet shows cash totalling £397,710, with quoted stocks and shares at £460,328. Of the year's profit £67,570 is due to a surplus over book value realised on the sale of a large part of the trust's holding of the Ordinary shares of Associated British Maltsters, Ltd. Apart from the net profit a sum of £36,016 has been transferred from the reserve for taxation as no longer required, and these two sums, with an addition of £8,414, or £112,000 in all, have been set aside as a depreciation reserve to provide for the writing down of certain assets. The year's operations have included the formation of a subsidiary with the object of providing capital for small concerns. This company has an issued capital of £200,000 in £1 shares, issued at 6d. premium, on which 5s. has been paid up. The Ordinary shares of the trust have a market value of 36s. 6d. cum. dividend.

Irish Cinemas, Limited

The subscription lists for the 200,000 6 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each and 200,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each, at 6s. per share, of the above company, whose prospectus appeared in our issue of Friday last, open to-day. The profits of the Savoy Cinemas and Restaurants, Dublin and Cork, which this company has acquired, amounted to over £42,000 for the year ended August, 1934, sufficient to cover the Preference dividend three and a half times, whereas the assets cover the Preference capital more than twice. The earnings of the Savoy Cinemas and Restaurants for the past five years make an excellent showing, the average annual profits being over £36,000.

BILL RATES FIRM

The market's expectations of an advance in the rate for Treasury bills to slightly over ⅛ per cent. were fulfilled, and as a result a rather firmer tone developed on Saturday in regard to bills.

For three months' fine bank drafts the leading discount houses sent out their minimum rate as ⅛ per cent., while the new Government paper occasionally changed hands at ⅛ per cent. One of the leading banks now refuses to take January and longer-dated maturities below ⅛ per cent., but most of the clearing institutions are still holding to their ½ per cent.

Conditions in the loan market were quite easy, borrowers satisfying their immediate requirements without difficulty at ½ per cent. Balances, in fact, were available down to ½ per cent.

Bar gold was quoted at 139s. 5d. per fine ounce, an advance of 1d. on Friday's price. This included a premium of about 8d. on the franc parity and 1d. on the dollar parity. Only £59,000 was sold. The week-end gold shipments from India will reach the substantial amount of £1,085,000.

Eastern buying of bar silver was more than offset by Continental sales, and the price reacted ¼d. to 24½d. per ounce for cash and 24⅞d. for two months' forward delivery.

There were only slight movements in the foreign exchanges, which showed a tendency to go against sterling. Fluctuations in the New York rate here confined to the limits of 4.99⅜ and 4.99½, the closing figure being 4.99⅜, compared with 4.99½ on Friday. Francs were dealt in between 75⅛ and 75¼, finishing without alteration at 75⅛. Swiss francs, Dutch florins, and the Belgian belga all closed firm in terms of sterling.

TRAMWAY WORKERS' CLAIMS

Two deputations waited upon the management of the Dublin United Tramways Company last Saturday in connection with labour questions. A deputation from the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union drew the attention of the company to the fact that the guaranteed week was not being maintained in the tramway service.

The company's representatives stated that there was no intention at any time to set aside the guaranteed week, and that any difficulties which had arisen were due entirely to co-ordination problems. They gave an undertaking that the wages would be adjusted immediately.

Messrs. G. M. Harriss and Kirwan, on behalf of the company, received a deputation from the Dublin Trades' Union Council and the National Union of Vehicle Builders to discuss the question of omnibus contracts.

Previously the Council had protested against the placing of contracts for the building of vehicles outside of Dublin.

The deputation was informed that the company proposed placing a contract in Clonmel, and also building a substantial number of vehicles in Dublin, but that no order had been given as yet.

Further communications between the parties will follow.

The annual dinner of the Dublin Trade Union Council, at Wynn's Hotel, on Saturday night, was made the occasion of a presentation to Mr. P. Holahan, P.C., past president of the Council.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Luckpenny : Lady Moira Forbes : Safety Razors : The Late Darrell Figgis : December Sales

Darrell Figgis

In a talk the other night the name of the late Darrell Figgis came up, and when it did a friend of mine recalled some incidents which displayed Figgis's resourcefulness to advantage. A certain Dublin publisher, my friend said, tells how this quality of Figgis carried him through a most awkward situation in the Anglo-Irish truce. A lorry of military or Auxiliaries swooped down on a Dublin street, and in the course of the search Figgis was arrested. With the sangfroid that characterised him Figgis turned to the officer and said: "Permit me to remark that I have some business with my publisher, and I should like to complete it before accompanying you to whatever place you have it in view to convey me." And his air of importance gained him his point. Figgis was driven through the streets and round to the publisher's office and allowed to alight at the door, go upstairs, and enter the publisher's room alone. In the room he handed the publisher a fat bundle of what were probably incriminating, or, at all events, important, documents, which the publisher locked up without examination in his safe. Figgis took his farewell, marched out with all the dignity of which he was so capable, and drove off to prison with his captors. For all his escort knew he might easily have escaped from the publisher's office by another exit. He had a fine flair for this kind of superior bearing. The documents, of course, were restored to him on his release.

Safety Razors

A correspondent has taken me very sternly to task over my remarks on safety razors a few days ago. He reminds me of the adage that "bad workmen always blame their tools," and begs leave to doubt my sanity if I really agree with the barber, that a man who shaves himself is lazier than one who goes to a shop to be shaved. As regards the average life of a blade, my correspondent tells me that my suggestion of three shaves only is too absurd for words, and advises me to change my make of razor at once; for, with the one he uses—one of the "stroppable" kind, he thinks he is doing very badly if he does not get at least three months of daily shaves out of a threepenny blade, and has had several that served him well for twice that time. Beyond stropping for ten or fifteen seconds after dipping in hot water and carefully wiping dry after use, this kind requires no special attention, but it is in the actual use that care must be taken. Nobody would try to cut a loaf of bread by pressing the knife absolutely straight through the loaf without any lateral movement, but many otherwise intelligent men force their razors straight at their beards and then wonder why the blade gives out after a few shaves. The whole art lies in drawing the razor across the hairs with a slanting movement, so that they are sliced off and not hacked. There is no fear of cutting the skin provided the lateral track of the blade is at an angle of not less than 45 degrees to its edge. This may sound very scientific, but I am assured it is the simplest thing in the world and just a matter of common-sense. The trouble with us nowadays, my correspondent concludes, is that things are made so easy for us by countless inventions and gadgets that we are losing the art of taking the trouble to do things properly.

Lady Moira Forbes

It is to be hoped that the announcement of Lady Moira Forbes's engagement and forthcoming marriage next month will not interfere with her hunting in Longford. Lady Moira has been Joint Master, with Captain Mayne, of the Longford Harriers for the past five seasons, although she is now only about 24. Prospects of good sport with this hunt are first-class, and, although a Harrier pack, foxes are plentiful. Like her sister, the Countess of Dumfries, Lady Moira has ridden from childhood. Indeed, there are those who tell you that one of the most attractive sights of Longford in the old times was when the three Granard children rode through the town on a fair day together. Lady Moira is probably one of the richest girls in the world, and when not hunting in Longford her time was spent between America, London and Paris. The Earl and Countess of Granard always have had a house in Paris and another in London. Lady Granard lived mostly in Paris, and, strangely enough, while she keeps horses in training in France, she has never raced in Ireland. One of her most treasured possessions is a remarkable collection of Irish linen.

Mr. R. C. Dawson

On one of his usual periodical visits to the homeland, Mr. R. C. Dawson is here for a few days. Mr. Dawson, who trains at Wantage, is still responsible for one of the largest stud farms in Ireland, which he started some years ago. This is the Cloghran establishment, which is now world-famous. Though perhaps a great deal of its lustre was dimmed through the removal of Blandford and Trigo to England in consequence of the political dispute between that country and ourselves, it is still supreme as a bloodstock breeding centre. When Blandford and Trigo held court there, as many as 90 mares came during the season from all parts of the world to visit them. The stud stands in the midst of about 1,000 acres of land, and is a model of everything modern, and up-to-date in the matter of equipment. Mr. Dawson, who is now internationally famous as a trainer and breeder, is, I believe, a Trinity College man.

Sales

One of the most important drafts of horses in training to come under the hammer at the December Sales next week will be four lots, the property of Major Dermot McCalmont. They are from the Kremlin House stables, now presided over by the Hon. George Lambton. All four are beautifully bred, are winners, and likely to make money. One lot in particular sports the rather unhappy name of Boozer's Gloom. Yet this bay colt (1931) is aptly named; for his dam is Take a Glass, and he is a son of Gainsborough. He has the Hambleton Maiden Plate at York, and the Beckhampton Handicap at Newbury to back him up. His dam's form is top class. Hesperitus, a three-year-old bay gelding, is included in the draft. By Tetratema, Hesperitus is the offspring of Hesperia, a winner, and the dam of three winners of important races, including Red Biddy, who achieved the total of £1,379 in stakes this year. Hesperitus won the Findon Stakes at Goodwood. Then there is the two-year-old grey filly Vallema, who won the Stud Produce Stakes at Sandown, going up. Vallema is a daughter of Valla (a winner) by Tetratema. She has a big list of engagements for 1935. Major McCalmont's other offering is Petronilla, a three-year-old bay filly by Buen Ojo, and winner of the Brocklesby Stakes at Lincoln. This filly is the only produce of her dam Stadacona, whose winnings amount to £4,240, and include the Queen Mary Stakes at Ascot.

Luckpenny

The regulations for the operations of the new Cattle Slaughter Act in the Free State, by which poor people will be given free meat, and farmers will be given a fixed minimum price for their animals, have dealt a blow at an old Irish custom. For many years it has been customary for the seller of a beast to give what was known as a luckpenny to the buyer when the purchase money had been exchanged. This luckpenny might have been a shilling, a florin, or five shillings, and because of some superstition, the origin of which has been lost, a sale was not regarded as complete until the token had been paid over. It was also a symbol of good faith between the buyer and seller, and who cared if the luckpenny was spent in buying a few drinks which provided an opportunity for a talk on pressing topics, and at the same time produced good feeling? But now the Government has ordered that it must pass away like the other simple and fine customs which wither before the breath of cold officialdom. The Minister for Agriculture, speaking on the new Act, has said that a purchaser is no longer entitled to luckpenny, "and if a farmer gives the usual shilling or two or more he may, if he repents of his generosity, sue the purchaser for recovery of that amount within twelve months." Cattle-selling in the future looks like being a cold, matter-of-fact business!

Pruning

Most of the trees that gladdened our hearts on our way to the city during the spring and summer are sorry-looking sights just now; for they have been drastically pruned by those who have their welfare at heart. The other day I watched the loading of these lopped-off branches and twigs on to a council cart, and later in the day saw a loaded cart deliver its timely burden at a yard gate. At this time the countryside is very busy in its search for firewood, and on any roadside where pruning is being done, or where trees are being cut down to make room for new houses, there is a large gathering of children with sacks, and of bigger children with ropes, for the removal of as many sticks as possible. Further in the country the pruning of roadside trees is not such a common practice; but there, too, the search goes on, and every sudden gale of wind brings its rich harvest to those who gather firewood. I notice that some of the latest additions to the rubbish dump near Booterstown are huge, unwieldy stumps of trees, complete with roots.

QUIDNUNC.

Mrs. Ann Henderson, who was born in the South of England, and celebrated her hundred and second birthday last month, died in Oswestry Institution on Saturday.

"I know, Mrs. Wills. Every mother has the same trouble with children sooner or later.

I've had a lot of experience and my advice is—give 'California Syrup of Figs'. There's nothing like it for keeping the stomach and bowels in good order. It's so natural, yet so sure. It acts on the bowels like fruit and does not create a habit.

So many Doctors recommend it and give it to their own children that I am sure it's the best, and you need to be sure when it is a question of the children's medicine, Mrs. Wills.

I do know mothers who experiment with cheap and drastic preparations. They don't realise that they're courting danger.

Send for a bottle of 'California Syrup of Figs' from the chemist now and give Joan a dose at bedtime. She'll be as bright as a lark in the morning. Give it to her regularly once a week and she'll have no more trouble with constipation.

There are two sizes—1/3 and 2/6. The larger bottle is the cheaper in the long run, but be sure to get 'California Syrup of Figs' brand."

A MODERN PILGRIM'S PROGRESS

LECTURE BY MR. JOHN GIBBONS

"A Modern Pilgrim's Progress," was the title of a lecture delivered by Mr. John Gibbons, the well-known author, in the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, yesterday afternoon, in aid of the Rathmines Church Restoration Fund.

The lecturer said that up to about six years ago he had never travelled extensively in foreign countries. He had at the time no money and went into a Catholic newspaper office, eventually persuading them to give him a contract to write a story of a walk to Lourdes. The paper, however, made certain conditions which he must keep, or else give up the idea. He was not to travel by train or omnibus; he was only to have a certain small allowance, and even that was only to be "picked up" in certain towns en route to Lourdes. He might, on the other hand, accept "lifts" from passing vehicles, but only if they were offered.

"I was pleased to hear this condition," said Mr. Gibbons; "but at that time did not know that the motorist of France seldom, if ever, offers one a lift."

The lecturer went on to describe the incidents that befel him, the strange sights he saw, and the difficulties he had experienced. He had started out with a pack on his shoulders, dressed in flannel trousers and a coat, and wearing heavy workman's shoes. It was not possible for him to carry a change of clothing, so that his appearance gradually became more and more like that of a tramp. As a result he was thrown out of inns, arrested by gendarmes, taken for an anarchist and chased by dogs.

"I remember," he said, "sitting on a cairn for half a night throwing stones to keep a dog at bay."

In conclusion, Mr. Gibbons said that as a youngster one of his greatest treasures was an out of date Bradshaw that he had bought for sixpence. From this he had worked out a series of imaginary travels throughout the Continent. In his real travels he had realised his ambition.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.) presided, and a vote of thanks to the lecturer was proposed by the Rev. Father Jerome, O.F.M., and seconded by Mr. Thomas J. Nix.

Mr. G. B. Shaw, who has been in bed at his London flat in Whitehall Court, S.W., for several days with a severe cold, was reported last night to be very much better and his temperature to be normal. He is 78 years of age.

Public Enemy No. 1—The Road Killer

British Minister of Transport Gets Things Done

BY HAROLD C. BROWN

ENGLAND is a conservative country. Even its Labour leaders are conservative. That may be the reason that young Ministers who really do things are regarded with awe, criticised and sometimes ridiculed.

Mr. Hore-Belisha, the British Minister of Transport, continues to occupy the centre of the limelight on the political stage across the Channel. Sir Kingsley Wood, the Postmaster-General—another who is breaking with tradition and doing his job brightly and well—shared the honours for a week or two, but when the trunk telephonic service at Woolworth prices ceased to be a sensation he retired up stage. The Minister for Transport remains close to the footlights.

They don't know what to make of him. The motoring papers—and there are no more intelligent men in journalism than the best of the writers for the technical motoring Press—can't make up their minds as to whether he is for or against the motorist.

"Belisha beacons" have become a music hall joke. Cyclists have protested against wearing a white patch, like a rabbit, on the tails of their machines. The special path for cyclists arouses no enthusiasm. Pedestrians and motorists join in grumbling at the special crossing places.

The Englishman also is a great grumbler, but his grumbling doesn't mean anything. Most of his emotions are superficial. When there is a change he objects—sort of on principle. England's initial reactions to the reforms of the Minister of Transport must not be taken too seriously.

All Motorists Not Blameworthy

APART from what I have read of his road reforms I know very little about Mr. Hore-Belisha, but I like him. I like people who get things done.

"My fight," he told a newspaper correspondent, "is against Public Enemy No. 1—the road killer."

"That's us," I can imagine some motorists saying, and feeling very sore about Mr. Hore-Belisha.

But why should it be "us"? The majority of motorists are decent, respectable drivers, who never deliberately take a risk or endanger the lives of other road users or of themselves. They should join as heartily as the pedestrian or the cyclist in condemning the "public enemy" of the roads.

The drunken driver is the worst, and yet it is he of whom the Free State authorities seem to be most tolerant. But there are careless drivers, reckless drivers, impatient drivers, who are a menace to public safety.

These are the people whose "wings must be clipped." To deal with them, however, it is necessary to have policemen who understand motors. Traffic "cops," to be really useful, must understand that fast motoring is not necessarily dangerous or reckless motoring, and that a car which makes a "fast" noise is not always returning a fast speed.

Forty, fifty, sixty—even seventy—miles per hour are safe and reasonable road speeds in their proper places, but only the experienced motorist knows where the proper places are. It is the man who does 45 m.p.h. on a bend that has a limit of 42 m.p.h. who causes crashes.

Swedish Challenge

IN many ways the most interesting feature of this year's Tourist Trophy motor cycle races in the Isle of Man was the challenge of the Swedish Husqvarna firm. Unfortunately, the racing Husqvarnas were dogged by bad luck from the time their construction commenced, this culminating in the breaking of a hawser when they were being shipped at Gothenburg.

All five machines were wrecked, but by working day and night the Swedish mechanics got two of them patched up so that they could be ridden in the Isle of Man. The machines were by no means perfect. Frames were out of alignment, and other troubles due to the Gothenburg mishap persisted.

Nevertheless, G. E. Nott brought one of the "Huskies" into third place in the Junior race, and Stanley Woods would have been second in the Senior had he not run short of petrol. Leaders of the British motor cycle industry knew that their racing prestige had never been so seriously assailed since the days when the American Indian machines were driven in the Isle of Man.

In this country we were particularly interested in the Swedish machines because Stanley Woods was one of the riders, and also because our sympathy, naturally, was with a small country like Sweden when it challenged the greatest motor cycle engineering firms in the world.

No Next Time

HUSQVARNAS, it was thought, really had the winning of a T.T. in them, and a return to the Island in 1935 was anticipated. Folke Manneratedt, manager of the Husqvarna works, who was in England for the Motor Cycle Show, has stated, however, that another challenge from his firm is unlikely.

"The course is much too difficult," he said. "I have never seen such a hard circuit. I have been round it ten times and still I cannot say that I know it. The course is hilly and winding, and is nothing but one blind curve after another. Walls and hedges obstruct the view, and it is only by having a thorough knowledge of the road that one can go at any speed."

He expressed the view that only English riders, who had the opportunity of going round it a few hundred times, could get to know the T.T. course. That is quite true, and as machines become faster knowledge of the course counts more and more.

Except in the early days, when all were equally familiar or unfamiliar with the course, and in the immediate post-War years, when similar conditions applied, no man has won a Tourist Trophy at the first attempt. But at least six have been successful in their second year—Alec Bennett, Stanley Woods, Jock Porter, Fred Hicks and the Twemlow brothers; while, what is even more noteworthy, "Jimmy" Guthrie was second in his first year.

The Husqvarna people take the view that unless they had riders familiar with the T.T. course nothing could be gained by racing in the Isle of Man next year, and riders with experience cost money—motor cycle racing is a professional pastime. No official Swedish entries may be made, but there is likely to be a Husqvarna competing with Stanley Woods as the entrant and rider.

£100,000 Worth of Cars

MEMBERS of Parliament, representatives of all the principal motor manufacturing companies and of the Society of Motor Manufacturers, New Zealand officials, and port and shipping company representatives, assembled at the King George V. Dock recently to witness the final stages in the assembling for shipment to New Zealand of the largest cargo of British motor vehicles that has ever left the country in one shipment.

The total number of vehicles booked for export was over 500—more than the total exhibited at the recent Motor Show at Olympia—and their value in New Zealand is computed at approximately £100,000.

All came in packing cases—carried by fleets of lorries and lighters or in whole train-loads. One huge case, containing a motor coach alone, took several hours to ship and required special gear. It was too large to pass length-wise through the hatchway of the 12,500 tons steamer, but after being tilted it was skilfully manœuvred into the hold.

The shipment is the culmination of four years' rapid conquest by the British industry of a market formerly dominated by the foreigner.

Several of the motor firms taking part in the shipment have in the past season more than doubled their exports to New Zealand; in fact, reports covering the entire industry show that in the past nine months British car exports to the Dominion have increased by 145 per cent. over the corresponding period of last year.

STUDENTS' REPRESENTATIVE COUNCIL

ELECTIONS NEXT WEEK

IT was announced during the week that the Students' Representative Council elections will be held on Wednesday, 5th December. Polling will take place on that day for the seats on the Council which represent the various divisions of the Faculties. The other seats are filled by representatives of the clubs and societies, who are appointed by their various committees. Nomination day will be Wednesday next, and all students must have filled in a College registration form before noon to-day to entitle them to vote on Wednesday week. If one is to judge by the amount of interest that is being taken in the preparations, there will be very keen contests in the "constituencies," and the number of nominated candidates will be very big.

The first meeting of the new Council will take place on Wednesday, 12th December, and at this meeting the President of the Council for the coming year will be elected. The candidates for the election will be Mr. Denis P. O'Donovan, B.A., and Mr. B. Cullen. Mr. O'Donovan is secretary of the present Council, and Mr. Cullen is vice-president. The other candidates for office on the Committee of the Council include Mr. J. A. M. Waters for the vice-presidency and Mr. V. B. Grogan for the secretaryship.

For the first time the S.R.C. has this year made arrangements to publish a College Christmas card. The card is a very simple one, bearing the College crest outside, with a simple greeting, and will be on sale at the office of the Students' Representative Council for December 1st.

A meeting of the Council will be held in "86" on Wednesday night, at which the official announcement regarding the coming election will be made. It is also expected that the report of the Commission which was set up to suggest necessary changes in the constitution of the Council will be published and discussed.

Club Officials Appointed

Two clubs held general meetings during the week, at which officers and committee for the coming year were appointed. In the Boxing Club, the new officials are:—Mr. L. B. McDermott, captain; Mr. Dermot O'Riordan, vice-captain; Mr. J. J. E. Henry, secretary, and Mr. J. F. O'Driscoll, treasurer. The new captain, Mr. McDermott, is British University Feather-weight Champion.

The elections in the Swimming Club resulted in the appointment of Mr. Ruairi Brolchain as captain; Mr. W. C. Kidney as vice-captain; Mr. Michael Halton, secretary, and Mr. D. E. Bell as treasurer. Mr. Bell is the outgoing president of the Students' Representative Council.

The details of the new course for the Diploma in Social Science were published recently. The subjects for the first term, which begins next month, include Physics, Chemistry, Anatomy and Business Methods. The remainder of the course will deal, among other subjects, with Pyschology, Medical Jurisprudence and Public Health. For ordinary students it will be a two-year course, but graduates may take the diploma after one year. The lectures for the first term will begin almost immediately.

The Commerce Society will meet as usual to-night in the old Physics Theatre, when the motion: "That a three-day week is a solution of the Unemployment Problem" will be debated. The Society has co-opted Mr. P. L. Kelly to represent the first-year members on the committee. The annual dance of the Commerce Society will be held next Friday night in the Aula Maxima. This will be the last dance to be held in College before Advent and, therefore, the last of the term.

Society Meetings

At a meeting of the Chemical Society held on Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Maurice Headon, S.J., read a paper on "Vitamins." Regular meetings of the society are held during this and next term, and preparations are being made for the inaugural meeting of the Society, which will take place early next term. On Friday afternoon Mr. J. E. A. Dargan, B.A., LL.B., read a paper to the English Literary Society on "Anton Tchekov." Although it is one of the smaller College societies, the English Literary Society is remarkable for the regularity and interest of its meetings, and its inaugural meeting last year was considered the most important meeting of the term.

A meeting of the Foreign Missionary Society was held on Friday night, at which the Rev. John Burke, Dean of Residence, presided. This newly-formed Society gives every promise of becoming a permanent influence in College, and the number of members is rapidly growing.

At the meeting of the Literary and Historical Society on Saturday night, Mr. Albert Wood, K.C., presided during a debate on the motion, "That there is a Definite Position for the University Graduate in Industry." No details are yet forthcoming as to the date of the inaugural meeting of this Society, but it will probably be held some time in January. It is announced that the Auditor, Mr. R. N. Cooke, B.Comm., owing to pressure of work, has found it necessary to appoint a deputy Auditor for the present.

The annual dance of the Boat Club will be held in the Aberdeen Hall to-morrow night. The booking for accommodation has been very heavy, but tickets may still be had from the Secretaries of the Dance Committee—Messrs. T. A. Doyle and B. O'Conor Donelan.

On Wednesday last the annual dance of the College Association Football Club took place in the Metropole. It was well attended, and, as usual, was very enjoyable. Particularly noticeable was the large attendance of the College staff.

The Rugby first fifteen is on tour this week-end. The tour started with a match against the Aldershot Services on Saturday, and to-day our team meets London University.

PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

At the weekly meeting of the Dublin Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held at 29 South Frederick street, Mr. F. O. Lyons presided. Also present:—Miss Hillas, Mr. Roberts, Miss Tuckey, Mr. Cromie, Miss N. Blakeney and Mr. Lefroy.

Three cases were reported during the week, and there were four convictions.

Subscriptions received:—Miss Croasdaile, 10s.; Miss Rawson, 5s.; Miss Leask, 10s.; Miss Fiennell, £1; Mrs. Batchen, 5s.; Mrs. Cromie, 10s.; E. S. Cromie, £1; F. A. Buckley, 5s.; Miss Vigors, 5s.; Mrs. Rogerson, 10s; Mrs. Lowe, 10s.; Miss E. Lucas, £1; Mrs. Porter Taylor, 10s. Collection—Miss Vigors, 12s. 6d Result of chocolates raffle: Ticket 107—Mr. Sinclair.

Fatal Motoring Accident.—William Adams (21), residing at Upper Newtownards road, Belfast, died in the Newtownards District Hospital as a result of injuries received in a motoring accident at Ballysallagh. It appears that deceased man was motor cycling from Clndebuye to Craigantlet, when he came into collision with a farm cart going in the opposite direction.

ON THE WIRELESS

Daily Programme Review

DUBLIN: Gabriel Fallon and Co. in "The Old Bull," 8.30.

BELFAST: The Abbey Players, 9.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: "Wuthering Heights" (Emily Brontë), 8.

MIDLAND REGIONAL: Birmingham Philharmonic String Orchestra, 9.

ALL REGIONALS AND BELFAST: "The Old Music Halls," 8.

LEIPZIG: Symphony Concert, 7.10.

BUDAPEST: Philharmonic Orchestra and Soloists, 6.40.

MOST of the stations have an outstanding item on their own account to-night, in which both music and drama are substantially represented. The plays to be presented are: "The Old Bull," a one-act play, written by B. Gilbert, which is in the very capable hands of Gabriel Fallon—this will come from the Dublin Studio; the Abbey Players contribute two plays from their repertoire, Lady Gregory's "The Workhouse Ward," and "Riders to the Sea," by J. M. Synge—on the Belfast wavelength; and, lastly, "Wuthering Heights" is to be put on the air.

As to whether the latter will be a success or otherwise, even those responsible for the production seem to doubt. To attempt to condense one of the world's literary masterpieces is to court criticism, if not condemnation. In "Wuthering Heights" Emily Brontë, throughout the story, creates an atmosphere of emotion. As one reads one actually experiences loneliness, fear, sadness, and at times abject misery, not so much by what is taking place as by the author's vivid pen pictures of the sinister house, remote from other homesteads, on the lone, bleak Yorkshire moors, wherein most of the story is set. One also rather dreads the possibility of Heathcliff sounding like the more usual villain. Subtle cruelty is so much more difficult to convey than physical brutality. Both these elements are embodied in the character who stalks the pages of the book, "Wuthering Heights."

It will be an interesting experience to learn how the play comes over, and in order to do so we must be prepared for two nights' listening; for the play will be broadcast in two parts. No pains have been spared in the preparation, and the casting has been done with utmost care, but since the co-operation of the listener's imagination is invited, it may be an advantage to have read the book. It will undoubtedly be the case when trying to connect the various relationships. The work of adapting and producing is shared by Barbara Couper and Howard Rose.

In studying the programmes for music we find that the London Symphony Orchestra (conducted by Stanley Chapple) is to be heard, following an excerpt from Act 1 of Edward German's "Merrie England," which is timed for 9 o'clock (London Regional). A concert will be given (also at 9 o'clock) by the Birmingham Philharmonic String Orchestra (conducted by Johan Hock), and the Midland Wireless Singers, under the direction of Edgar Morgan, on the Midland Regional wavelength.

A programme for Welsh listeners, starting with a Schubert interlude at 9, is arranged by West Regional, and a Gaelic concert, to be performed by the Greenock Gaelic Choir, with Mary C. Macniven (soprano) as soloist, will be heard, under the direction of Ian A. Macdonald, at 9.25, in the Scottish programme.

WEXFORD HARBOUR

SCHEME TO COST £170,000

NEW CHANNEL PLAN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

WEXFORD, Saturday.

Though Wexford Harbour Board Commissioners have spent more than £8,000 during the past four years in keeping the Harbour dredged, shipping has continued to decline. The Board have now received a report and plan of a scheme prepared by the Albetam Dredging and Construction Company, The Hague, which they deem necessary to allow vessels of 3,000 tons and over to enter the Harbour. The consulting engineers to the Harbour Board, Messrs. McAteer and MacEntee, Dublin, have approved of the Albetam scheme, which the Dutch firm undertake to carry out for the sum of £170,000. The company propose to dredge a straight channel from the quays in Wexford for four miles to a depth of 15 feet at low water. The new channel would be protected by a continuous wall on the north side, the last mile of the structure being built on interlaced wicker work mattresses. On the southern side of the channel two portions would be protected by walls, the total length of which would be one and a half miles. The width of the channel would be 1,240 feet. Provision is also made in the scheme for a basin at the quays of about 1,600 feet by 600 feet. If the scheme is carried out the consulting engineers express the opinion that vessels up to 3,000 tons which have been forced to go to other ports will be provided with easy access at Wexford. Messrs. McAteer and MacEntee consider the scheme an extremely good one, and could only be carried out for £170,000 by a very well equipped and organised contractor. There was no such contractor in Ireland; so, unless a larger sum be paid for the work, Messrs. McAteer and MacEntee state, the contract will inevitably have to be placed outside Ireland. The proposed works, they also say, could be carried out in two years. Of the sum estimated by the Albetam Co., £78,000 would be distributed locally, and, perhaps, 90 per cent. of that sum paid in wages.

The Harbour Board have made representations to the County Council and Wexford Corporation to raise rates in aid of the scheme preparatory to approaching the Government for financial assistance.

Steps have been taken by the Board to apply for permission to introduce a Private Bill in the Dail to give legislative effect to the proposals under the scheme.

The Wexford County Council have decided to strike a rate in aid of 2½d. in the £, provided the Harbour Board contributes £2,000 a year. Wexford Corporation will contribute the proceeds of a rate of 1s. 2d. on the borough if the scheme matures.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL

SERMON BY DR. TEMPLE

Almost three thousand worshippers yesterday heard the Archbishop of York preach on "Faith" at the Evensong Service in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin. Many were unable to find seats, and the great Cathedral was crowded to the doors.

"Faith," said the Archbishop, "is the principle of all progress. It is by faith that men advance from things familiar to the things for which they hope and which they have not yet seen. Most of us to-day desire to be thought practical people, which should mean people who do something, who make a difference. Yet over and over again we hear men object to some scheme, saying they have no time for visions, that they are practical men. Such people will leave the earth just as they found it. You can only make a difference, apart from accident, if you have a vision of the world, not only as it is, but as it might be; then give your life to make that vision true."

Citing instances, the preacher said:—Augustine, by faith, had directed the world's attention to the truly Eternal City when the city which men had called eternal was crumbling into ruin before the barbarian invasion. By faith Hildebrand claimed for Christ supremacy over all men, and subjected national policies to His representatives. By faith Wycliffe recalled men to fresh appreciation and truer understanding of Scripture; by faith Savonarola protested against the corruption of the Church, and made uncorrupt at least his own city; by faith Luther and Calvin drew the Church from worldliness back upon its true spiritual foundation.

"The vision of these heroes was never exactly realised," continued the Archbishop. "What we accomplish will not be precisely what we planned—the world cannot be made perfect through us—because God always has provided some better thing for those who come after us. Yet all these heroes bear witness to the practical power of faith. Though these shining examples stir the imagination, and though you enter into the joy of these men's accomplishmtnts you may say 'There is nothing of the like that I can do to-day.' None of these great men would have accomplished what he did, had not there been multitudes of others ready each to do some small part. That is the way great things come to pass.

"Everyone of us can give our energy to realise a noble vision—a vision of our world firmly based upon justice and the peace which justice alone can secure; our own country free from sectional bitterness and active with the spirit of fellowship in all mankind; our own Church more deeply and thoroughly inspired with missionary and evangelistic zeal, yearning to bring men to Christ; and our home, if Christ perfectly reigned in it.

"As we look back over the path mankind has travelled it is like a road that stretches through the night, its course marked by beacon-lights—the lives of saints and heroes casting light upon the way their fellow-men must tread," concluded the Archbishop.

RETREAT FOR CIVIC GUARDS

Six hundred Civic Guards made an impressive display yesterday, when they marched from Dublin Castle to the Church of St. Francis Xavier, Upper Gardiner street, for the conclusion of their annual retreat. The Dublin Metropolitan Guards' Band headed the parade, which included the Commissioner, Colonel Broy, Deputy Commissioner Coogan, Assistant Commissioner Walsh, and Chief Superintendents Clarke, O'Dwyer and Duffy. The officer in charge of the parade was Superintendent Hurley. All city divisions were represented.

The retreat was conducted by the Rev. Fathers O'Donoghue, S.J., and Gleeson, S.J.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy and grouchy. It makes us feel no good for anything.

What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless two pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and three-quarters of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped tomcat, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carters Brand Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and has bad effects in many people. Ask for Carters Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for — 1/3 and 3/-.

ATTRACTIVE CONCERT

DUBLIN PERFORMANCE

CONCHITA SUPERVIA IMPRESSES

Conchita Supervia, the Spanish singer, was the outstanding figure at the Celebrity Concert in the Capitol Theatre last Saturday afternoon. Those who remembered her first visit a couple of seasons ago, as well as those who were now hearing her for the first time, must have come away greatly impressed with the consummate artistry of a singer who in many ways departs from the conventional on the concert platform. For instance, it is a characteristic of hers to change her dress during a concert to suit the atmosphere; on Saturday she appeared in three different costumes, notable among them being the second she wore for her first group of Spanish songs. It was a striking Cata Flamenca costume in ivory satin and carmine, with sweeping train, designed and executed under the direction of the Spanish painter, Nestor. But it was neither the dresses nor outstanding quality of voice that captured her audience so much as the singer's personality. She was intensely alive, and entered with enthusiasm into different songs, making them not so much concert ballads as little character sketches of varying types in the Spain she knew. For sheer realism nothing could have excelled her singing of the Lament of the Andalusian woman. Not unlike the caoine still heard along the Western coast of Ireland, it had a weird, soul-stirring strain that sent shivers through her hearers. On a brighter note, but equally compelling, were her singing of Granados' Danza V., De Falla's "Jota," and the lovely Andalusian song, "Polo," by Nin.

In her final group of songs, which included seven of the most important rhythms of the Andalusian and Gitan folk-lore, Madame Supervia, who wore an Andalusian costume, was accompanied on the guitar by Amalio Cuenca, whose mastery of the instrument was a revelation as to its possibilities for accompaniment. Nowhere was the singer's departure from the conventions more evident than in this group. In her native costume she sat comfortably in one chair—lolling at ease, one might say—while the guitar player sat in another, and, helping the atmosphere, an exquisite Spanish shawl was draped loosely across the grand piano, providing a colourful background.

ARTISTRY

In this happy setting Madame Supervia held her audience as she sang her group of folk lore illustrating the wealth of rhythm this type of music possesses. One felt that the singer was a "born" story-teller, so naturally did she bring to life the different characters. Her gestures, motions and her face, especially the play of her eyes, fascinated her audience, and it was a wonderful tribute to the singer that, even though singing all the time in Spanish, she could so sustain interest. It was no more than one expected when she finished the singing of a dreamy tango air by executing a few steps of the dance.

One felt what a pity it was that she had not included some of the operatic arias in her repertoire. Her only departure, however, into that realm was in the opening group, when she sang two Rossini arias—the one from "L'Italiana in Algieri," and the other, the famous Rondo from "Cenerentola." These were marked by exquisite delicacy of touch, in which the singer got her effects by the use of a lovely mezza voce in splendid, if not quite perfect, control, which brought out every syllable of the words. One was sure her singing of one of Carmen's arias would have been thrilling.

THE VIOLINIST

Temianka, the violinist, also remembered for his previous visits, contributed to the Spanish atmosphere of the afternoon by playing the Romance and Allegro by Lalo. It was dedicated to Lalo's friend, Sarasate, and has the same charming melodic being as that composer's better-known "Symphonie Espagnole." The expressive melody of the Romance was beautifully sustained, and the player's splendid technique was revealed especially in the exquisite pianissimo at the close of the Romance. The Spanish colouring was well painted in the Allegro movement. Temianka also played a "Bagatelle" b ythe Roumanian composer, Scarlatescu—somewhat in the style of tzigane improvisation; "Romance," by Sibelius, with its two melodies which were a test of technique, and the somewhat familiar "Variations" borrowed from Corelli by Tartini and Kreisler.

PIANIST

The solo pianist was Mitja Nikisch, son of the famous composer, Arthur Nikisch, who died a decade or so ago. This young man has had an extraordinary success on the Continent during the last two years. On Saturday he devoted himself almost exclusively to Chopin, and, though he achieved brilliant effects in his playing, notably in the Polonaise in A flat major, one felt a little uncomfortable in his reading of the composer. Perhaps, it was not so marked in the Polonaise, but in the Etude in C minor and the Waltz in A flat major there was altogether too much rubato—the flow of the music was too often interrupted. The Fantasie Impromptu given as an encore was, perhaps, the most enjoyed of his pieces, though his playing of the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 10 had dramatic touches.

Mr. Ivor Newton played the accompaniments for Madame Supervia and Temianka with his usual artistry.

CHRIST CHURCH, RATHGAR

PRESENTATION TO ORGANIST

A social meeting was held in the Lecture House of Christ Church Presbyterian Church, Rathgar, last Friday evening.

The Very Rev. Dr. Macaulay, who presided, in welcoming the new members of the congregation, said that they were met primary to pay a tribute to Mr. V. J. Fielding, who had resigned his post of organist and choirmaster. He referred to Mr. Fielding's long and happy association with the church over a period of thirty-four years, and to his unfailing courtesy and willingness to assist at all times in connection with the various organisations of the church.

Mr. W. P. Robertson voiced the sentiments of the Kirk Session, and Mr. E. Bain, in the name of the members of the congregation, presented Mr. Fielding with a radiogram, record cabinet, and a portfolio of selected records.

Miss Carroll, on behalf of the choir, presented him with two silver reading lamps.

Mr. Fielding expressed his grateful thanks for the handsome gifts.

Mr. A. G. Bruty then welcomed the new organist, Mr. H. J. Yoakley.

An enjoyable musical programme was contributed by Mrs. T. Gillespie, Mrs. H. J. Yoakley, Mrs. L. G. Smith, Miss C. McGregor, Miss L. McElnay, Mr. N. D. Davidson and Mr. Yoakley, who acted as accompanist.

THIS WEEK IN THE DAIL

THE MILK BILLS IN COMMITTEE

A DULL SESSION ANTICIPATED

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE two milk bills, which have already passed their second stage, will be on the Order Paper for Committee stage when the Dail meets on Wednesday. The proposed amendments to the Milk Bill proper have already been mentioned. There is so far only one amendment to the Food and Drugs (Milk) Bill. This stands in the names of Mr. T. J. O'Donovan and Mr. Nicholas Wall.

It proposes to insert in Section 2, which deals with prosecutions for selling milk deficient in milk fat, a protecting proviso which will save the vendor if "it is proved to the satisfaction of a court of competent jurisdiction before whom any charge is brought that the milk sold was milk as produced by the proper milking of healthy and well-fed cattle, that there had been no tampering with the milk, and that it was sold in the same condition as it came from the cow."

The Local Government (Amendment No. 2) Bill will also be down for Committee stage. In this connection Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, the Minister for Local Government, has put down a couple of amendments.

COURTS OF JUSTICE BILL

The text of the Courts of Justice Bill is not yet forthcoming, and it is unlikely now that it will be available until the new year. For that reason the few remaining weeks of the present session are likely to be dull, since there is nothing very controversial in the business either on the Order Paper or expected. It is probable that the Government will afford time for the discussion of some of the notices on the Order Paper, most of which have been there for the greater part of a year.

Two reports of Commissions are being looked forward to with interest. These are the Fisheries Commission and the Donegal Ports and Harbours Commission. It is understood that the latter body has already formulated its report, and that it is with the Executive Council.

The Fisheries Commission has completed the taking of evidence, and will shortly present its report.

GIRLS' CHURCH PARADE

ARCHDEACON AND THE RIGHT ROAD

Almost six hundred members took part in the annual Parade of the Dublin Battalion of the Girls' Brigade, which was held in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday afternoon. The offerings at the Service (which was conducted by the Dean of Christ Church, assisted by the Rev. W. W. Dungan and the Rev. W. H. Turl) were for the maintenance of the bed in the Adelaide Hospital which is supported by the battalion. The lesson was read by the Rev. R. J. Elliott, while the sermon was preached by the Ven. J. W. Crozier, Archdeacon of Dublin. The parade was in charge of Miss Hall, captain of the battalion.

The Archdeacon took as his text the words: "Ye have received of us how ye ought to walk and to bless God" (Thessalonians iv., 1). He said that there were two roads by which we could walk in a Christian life. One of them was a broad road—an inviting road—yet a highway that led to destruction. Sometimes it looked very attractive; it seemed to be short, but as a person walked on it he or she found that it became rougher and more steep as they proceeded. That road meant disaster and unhappiness. The other road at first sight did not appeal to us so much; it had not the same attraction to the senses, but it was a road that led to the Life Eternal, and our walking upon it pleased God.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT

Under the new Traffic Act, which was soon to come into operation, an attempt was to be made once more to prevail upon people to walk on the left. The other day he had walked along Nassau street on the left-hand side, and although he had met twenty-five or thirty people, they were all walking on the wrong side. He appealed to the members of the Girls' Brigade always to see that they walked on the correct side. If they listened they would hear the voice of the spirit telling them on what way they should go, and they should not try to stifle or choke that voice.

If they did not keep to the right side they were liable to fall into traps. They had always before them the finger posts which God had placed for their guidance. The Church was one of them; the Bible was another; while their officers and teachers also could guide them along the right roads. If they looked where they were going they could not help seeing bad companions.

He further asked them to be careful of the crossings. If they listened in to the wireless they learned that week after week hundreds of people were killed because they did not mind the crossings. If they were not careful at the crossings they might be knocked down by a motor cycle or a motor car. It was the same in life. There they had to cross many difficult places on the road, and very often, if they were not careful, they would be knocked down and run over by the temptations and sins that lay along their paths. He asked them to be very wary at the crossings of purity and truth.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

Viscountess Craigavon opened a sale of work last week in the Irish-American Hall, Belfast, organised by Donegall Square Church in aid of church funds and overseas missions, Sir Frederick Cleaver presiding at the opening ceremony. Among those who took part in what proved to be a very interesting occasion were the Rev. F. E. Harte, M.A.; the Rev. Dr. Northridge and Mr. W. Robinson, J.P.

Mr. J. Robertson Coade, Lay Treasurer of the Home Mission Department, has done yeoman service in many parts of the country in connection with the Home Missionary Anniversaries. In places as far apart as Carlow and Athy, Cookstown and Moneymore, Mr. Coade presided at a number of very successful gatherings, and in other ways greatly helped the Services.

The new President of the Belfast Chamber of Trade, Mr. George W. Clarke, M.B.E., is a well-known member of University Road Church.

The mid-week Service in the Centenary Church, Dublin, has for some time been conducted on conversational lines, the leader giving a short address and those present discussing the subject and asking questions of the leader. At this Service recently Mr. Alfred Fannin, B.A., spoke on "The Stewardship of Money." The address was followed by a very interesting conversation. Mr. Fannin urged that everyone should set aside a definite proportion of their income for religious and charitable purposes, but forcefully showed that the fixing of a mechanical rate—say of one-tenth—is against the idea of private judgment, and the responsibility of each man for the stewardship of the money with which he has been entrusted. He also showed that the actual amount contributed by the Jews of olden times ran from one-fifth to one-third of their income, but that this included the amount of expenditure which is now undertaken by the State, and is covered by rates and taxes.

Miss Gladys Cook, from the Mission House, London, was the chief speaker at two conferences of the Girls' League, held recently in Ireland. The annual conference of the Belfast District was held at Childhaven, Donaghadee, and that of the Dublin District at Greystones, County Wicklow.

Cardinal Sincero has been nominated president of the commission for the codification of the canon law of the Oriental Church, in succession of the late Cardinal Gasparri.

DUBLIN MURDER CHARGE

WIDOW TELLS OF SHOOTING

CASE AGAINST ARMY OFFICER

IN the Dublin District Court on Saturday, before Mr. E. J. Little, the hearing was resumed of the charge preferred against Commandant Leo O'Brien (33), National Army, of having murdered John Aloysius Stokes (38), a civil servant, at 33 Mespil road, Dublin, on Saturday, November 3rd, by shooting him with a revolver. O'Brien and Stokes were married to sisters, daughters of Mrs. Marie, 33 Mespil road.

The case was followed with great interest, and hundreds of people were unable to gain admission to the Courthouse.

Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Mr. P. J. Roe (instructed by Mr. P. F. O'Reilly, solicitor) defended.

The first witness called was Mrs. Stokes, widow of Mr. John A. Stokes. A tall, fair, attractive-looking woman, in deep mourning, she displayed signs of great distress, and spoke in a very low voice.

WIDOW'S EVIDENCE

Answering Mr. Haugh, she stated that she married Mr. Stokes in 1928, and had one son, aged 5½ years. Up to the time of his death her husband resided with her and her child in their flat at 33 Mespil road. Her mother, brother, and her unmarried sister also lived in the heuse. Commandant O'Brien married her sister about two years ago, and they both lived in their quarters in Beggar's Bush Barracks. The O'Briens had been on friendly terms with her and her husband up to about two months before the tragedy. About three weeks before her husband's death she and her husband were in her brother's shop in Leeson street. Another sister asked witness and Mrs. O'Brien to "make it up and not to be silly." There was a formal reconcilement, but they did not make it up altogether. Just then Commandant O'Brien entered. There was, however, no conversation between her husband and O'Brien. Later, when she was in the diningroom Commandant O'Brien came in He seemed in a bad humour.

The Justice—How did you know that?

The Witness—By his face; he had a fierce look.

Continuing, witness said that O'Brien said: "What did you say about Jack and Milo Burke?" Mrs. O'Brien turned round, and Mr. O'Brien went out again. Her husband asked Mrs. O'Brien to explain what she meant by passing a remark about Leo's winnings. She did not know what Mrs. O'Brien's reply was.

AN HOUR'S DISCUSSION

O'Brien referred to the incident of Stokes's little boy, who was sent home from O'Brien's residence in the barracks without his tea. The discussion lasted about an hour, and was all about the one topic. Her husband tried to get back to the alleged remark about the winnings. O'Brien ignored that, and kept stressing the remark about Louis (the little boy) and the tea—that they thought he begrudged Louis his tea. Witness and her husband then left. She said good-bye to her brother and his wife, but not to O'Brien. O'Brien never called at 33 Mespil road after that. It was at Mespil road that she next saw Mrs. O'Brien, who called several times to see her mother. On November 2 she was on quite friendly terms with Mrs. O'Brien, but not with O'Brien. On that evening she went with two other women to Beggar's Bush Barracks to see her sister. Witness went into the hall, but did not see Commandant O'Brien. She remained about ten minutes, and then returned home.

THE SHOOTING

On Saturday, 3rd November, she met her husband, who was a civil servant, by appointment in Grafton street at 1 o'clock, and they walked home and had dinner. About 3 p.m. they went out, accompanied by their little boy, to do shopping, and returned about six o'clock. Her mother, her unmarried sister and a maid were the only persons in the house. Witness and her husband went upstairs to their flat and prepared tea. While upstairs she heard a knock at the door. The maid went down to attend to it, and, returning, said something. Her husband went downstairs and witness followed. When she entered the front sitting-room her husband was standing there. He looked pale and had his arms folded. O'Brien was standing facing him. There was a table between them. "I passed O'Brien, said the witness," and took up a position about two feet from my husband. O'Brien was leaning with his hands on the table. A black revolver was lying near my husband on the table."

The witness here sobbed, and was handed a glass of water, which she sipped.

"I asked," said witness, "what, in the name of God, does that mean?" My husband said: "It is a revolver; don't touch it." On entering the room I had heard my husband say: "Well, Leo, up to last night I had held my tongue." O'Brien replied: "You have finished my life with Leone and I am going to finish yours now."

Witness asked O'Brien: "Why did you drag Jack's name down."

Immediately she heard three reports and saw the flashes. Her husband put up his hands and fell into an armchair. There was blood coming from his mouth. O'Brien left the room then and said: "I am going for the police."

A CARD PARTY

Cross-examined by Mr. Roe—There had been a card party in Leeson street about two months ago, and it was in reference to that the remark was made about O'Brien's winnings. It was about two weeks subsequently that they met in her brother's shop.

Miss Elizabeth C. Ryan, a nursemaid employed at 33 Mespil road, stated that she had on occasions brought Mrs. Stokes' child to O'Brien's quarters. The last occasion was about two months before the shooting. They arrived there about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and left at about 6.15. They did not get any food there, although she saw Mrs. O'Brien prepare food and take it to the diningroom. They walked home and got very wet. She did not see O'Brien visit Mespil road after that, and witness did not again take the child to Beggar's Bush.

PRISONER'S ARRIVAL

Counsel then took the witness to the day of the shooting. She said that Mr. and Mrs. Stokes returned from a walk about 6 o'clock and went to their flat. Witness was preparing tea, when there was a knock at the door, and she went down. Mrs. Marie had opened the door, and Commandant O'Brien, who was there, asked if Mr. Stokes was in. She said, "Yes." Witness went upstairs, and Mr. and Mrs. Stokes came down. Witness also went downstairs with the child, and when at the bottom of the stairs she heard three shots. She saw Mr. Stokes coming towards the door staggering, with his hands to his face. She asked him what happened, and he did not reply. His face was covered with blood. O'Brien was standing with his back to the fire-place. Witness caught Mr. Stokes as he was about to fall. "I knelt down beside him, and O'Brien, coming out of the sittingroom, stepped over me and went towards the hall-door." Witness then telephoned for a priest.

Miss Rosaline Coyle, who was passing by 33 Mespil road about 6.30 on November 3, stated that she heard three shots and screaming, and a woman came out on the steps and went back again. A man then came out and went towards a lamp-post. A bicycle was there; he mounted it, and rode towards Beggar's Bush Barracks. Witness did not see the man's face.

Miss M. Maguire, who was with the previous witness, corroborated.

Mr. Haugh said that that was all the evidence he was in a position to offer that day. He intimated that he would be able to complete the case in one more afternoon.

The Justice—Very well; two o'clock on Monday.

The prisoner was then removed in custody.

President Roosevelt entertained Mr. Edsel Ford, Henry Ford's son, to dinner last night for the first time since the crisis between the Ford Company and the administration over the N.R.A. Code for the motor industry, which Ford refused to sign. Later Mr. Ford told reporters that the Ford Company had not signed the code, and had no intention of doing so, but that they were complying "100 per cent. and more" with the code requirements.

LEAGUE OF YOUTH

RECEPTION AND DANCE IN DUBLIN

Commandant and Mrs. Cronin and Colonel and Mrs. Ryan were the guests of honour at a reception and dance which was held by the South Dublin Division of the League of Youth in the Mansion House, Dublin, last Saturday night. The guests were met by a guard of honour, and conducted through a file of Blue Shirts, who stood to attention, to the platform, where the Blue Shirt anthem was sung.

Commandant Cronin welcomed Colonel Ryan. He deplored the action taken by ex-members of the Blue Shirt organisation, who, he said, were engaged in attempting to destroy the work of the last few years. He was proud to stand on any platform with Mr. Cosgrave, and it was to be regretted that there were men now engaged in misrepresenting that man who had done more for Ireland than any other in their time or any previous time.

Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D., said that the Blue Shirt organisation had the same tradition as the Volunteers, to enhance which should be the pride of every Irishman — true Irish citizenship. Any of them who knew Colonel Ryan knew also that he had given his service to the country in times when good soldiers were most needed; they knew he would not come into conflict with the laws for which he had fought so hard to have respected in the country.

Colonel Ryan, replying, appealed to the Blue Shirts to stop the growing cancer that was spreading through the country—calling "traitor" to those with whom they did not agree.

The attendance included:—The Director-General, Commandant Cronin, and Mrs. Cronin; Deputy Director-General, Colonel Ryan, and Mrs. Ryan; Captain J. P. and Mrs. Doyle, Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, T.D., and Mrs. Cosgrave; Mr. F. MacDermot, T.D.; Mr. J. Dillon, T.D.; Dr. T. O'Higgins, T.D.; Captain J. Mack and Mrs. Mack, Captain Sean Stewart, Miss E. McNeill, Senator and Mrs. Blythe, Mr. P. S. Doyle, T.D.; Senator and Mrs. Staines, Mr. M. Keogh, Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., T.D., and Mrs. Costello; General and Mrs. Mulcahy, Mr. V. Rice, K.C., T.D.

Ferment in Europe.

Gradually the widespread ramifications of Central and South-Eastern European politics are beginning to manifest themselves in the controversies that have followed the recent assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseilles. When the murder was committed, and the assassin proved to have been a Croat, there was a general feeling of relief in well-informed circles, because it was felt that, if he had been an Italian, there would have been imminent danger of an outbreak of war. The Yugoslavs hate the Italians even more bitterly than they hate the Magyars, because they believe—not without some justice—that Italy treated them badly after the War. D'Annunzio's seizure of Fiume never will be forgotten by the Yugoslavs, and relations between the two States, although "correct," have been decidedly cool for many years. In view of Signor Mussolini's notorious impetuosity, therefore, and of his studied contempt of the League of Nations, everybody was glad that King Alexander's murderer could not be connected in any way with Italy; and it was hoped that, when the inevitable accusations should be made, they would be confined to charges against Hungary, in order that any fear of international complications might be avoided. The Yugoslav Note to the League fulfilled that hope. There was no mention of Italy. Nevertheless, the Italians now have entered the arena as champions of the Magyars. The Hungarian representative at Geneva has made an official request to the Secretary-General that Yugoslavia's accusing Note shall be placed on the agenda of the extraordinary meeting of the League's Council during the present week, thus making it a matter of urgency. Italy, we learn, will support this request with vigour.

The Italians, however, are going even farther. In an announcement on Saturday it was stated that "responsible Italian circles consider that a nation cannot be left under such grave accusations as those which have been advanced against Hungary by the Yugoslav memorandum." The diplomatic phraseology of this statement, translated into plain English, means that Italy will support the Magyars in case of trouble. Naturally, this rapid alignment of Rome with Buda Pest has caused indignation in Belgrade. The Yugoslav newspapers now allege that the trail of some of the Janka Pusta conspirators led across the Italian frontiers, and the threat has been made quite openly at Geneva that, if the Italians do not mind their own business, the Yugoslav Government will publish certain information in its possession implicating Italy in the Marseilles crime. Obviously, feeling is running very high in Yugoslavia. The mere mention of Italy's name is likely to exacerbate the controversy; and every lover of peace must deplore the turn that is being taken by events. During the last few years the political constellations in Europe have been changing with kaleidoscopic speed. The friend of to-day is to-morrow's enemy, as the Great Powers manœuvre for position, and political affiliations are changed with a bare-faced cynicism that would be incredible, if it did not happen to be true. In the present crisis Yugoslavia has the warm support of Czechoslovakia and Rumania, the other members of the Little Entente—a fact which presupposes, at least, the sympathy of France. On the other side, Hungary has the friendship of Italy, with Germany and, mirabile dictu, Poland, in the background. Thus the division of Europe into opposing camps is beginning again to threaten world peace.

It would be easy to exaggerate the dangers of the present position, which might be described in the words of a witty observer of international politics as "critical, but not serious." Nobody in Europe really wants war at present, simply because nobody is ready for it. Ethics do not enter into the problem. No sane man can doubt that, sooner or later, there will be another conflict, but none of the continental nations at the moment is sufficiently sure of itself, or of its allies, to throw down the gauntlet. On the other hand, of course, the chances of an "accidental" war cannot be ignored. The Yugoslavs and the Italians both are hot-blooded people, and the former are the most war-like race in Europe, if not in the world. The utmost tact will be necessary at Geneva, therefore, if the present crisis is to be resolved, as we hope and believe that it will be resolved. From a longer point of view, the situation on the continent is gloomy in the extreme. M. Archimbaud's hint of a military entente between France and Soviet Russia must have come as a real shock to millions of simple-minded persons throughout the world who remember the French attitude towards the Bolsheviks a few years ago. Times have changed, and political morality has changed with them. Since Poland joined the German group an understanding between Paris and Moscow has become inevitable, and the French, being realists, probably take the view that the Bolsheviks are not very much worse than the old Tsarists. I note that M. Archimbaud's statement is denied in Paris; and, possibly, it was premature. A Franco-Russian alliance, however, even if it has not been concluded yet, is a logical development of the present situation. History rarely fails to repeat itself.

Ireland and South Africa

We commend to President de Valera's notice the statement by General Hertzog, Prime Minister of South Africa, that he is "done with republicanism." Such an admission from such a man is the highest possible tribute to the freedom possessed by Dominions of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Until very recently General Hertzog has been the most ardent of all rebels against British authority, and the most formidable—more formidable than Mr. de Valera, because more consistent and more practically minded. As a soldier he fought against Britain in the South African War; as a politician he has fought against her ever since then. Now, says this hitherto implacable foe of the British connection, "I am done with a republic and republicanism." What has produced such a change of heart? There are, in the first place, many material reasons why General Hertzog should tire of his republican ambition. Hard times have descended upon South Africa, who, like Ireland, is fitted by nature to produce far more goods than she can consume; and the General cannot fail to have realised that a policy of republican isolation must prolong and intensify his country's distress. A still stronger impulse, however, in the eyes of one who has been a visionary and an apostle all his life, is the growing consciousness that within the British Commonwealth there is no such thing as subject status, no diminution of liberty by one jot or tittle, and that a Dominion of the Commonwealth possesses freedom as complete and absolute as the freedom of any sovereign State on earth. To these two considerations, powerful as they are in themselves, General Hertzog adds yet a third. His policy has been, and is, he declares, to build one great South African nation, in which the English-speaking people and the Afrikaans-speaking people shall respect each other's ideals, heroes and history, and shall face the future, shoulder to shoulder, as fellow-citizens of that nation which they have combined to build. This doctrine, too, carries a lesson for us and for our politicians. Outside the fold of the Commonwealth, as General Hertzog well knows, there can be no hope of a united South African nation; within it Briton and Boer can work in harmony for the progress and glory of their country. In like manner a united Ireland can be sought only within that fold. Break the tenuous bond which holds Ireland to the Empire and all expectation of a thirty-two county Irish nation will vanish automatically from the ken of the youngest child now living. President de Valera must make the choice which his fellow-rebel, General Hertzog, has made already. It is the choice between a divided nation, bereft of all that solidarity of purpose which is true nationality, and a unified nation, one in faith and doctrine, that abides by its imperial heritage.

Native Crafts

"The day of the small craftsman is by no means over," said Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly on Saturday, when he opened an exhibition promoted by the Women's Industrial Development Association in Cork. He was pleading for the encouragement of the smaller and more individual industries in the Free State, and, whatever we may think of the Government's general programme, we will applaud any steps it may take to support our native crafts. The day of the small craftsman may not be over, but in many countries the dusk is beginning to fall. What formerly was done by hand now is done by machinery; for speed and cheapness are more valuable to the modern world than individual skill. Little by little the craftsman is vanishing—is there any man in Dublin who could reproduce the wonderful ceilings and the elaborate ironwork which the eighteenth century turned out almost as a matter of course? We cannot help the victory of the machine (and it would be useless to regret it), but at least we can see that it is kept within proper limits. Here in Ireland we still have workers in lace, pottery, textiles and other crafts, whose work, as Mr. O'Kelly says, is marked by the stamp of individuality. We must not let them disappear, because they represent part of our tradition, and because their absence would lead to still more of that uniformity which the machine brings to every country. If they are given reasonable encouragement, indeed, there is no reason why they should disappear. The Free State is not a highly industrialised country, and we hope that it may not become one. There is room in it both for the factory and for the cottage craftsman, and there seems to be no pressing reason why we should allow the former to submerge the latter.

The Criminal Class

At a recent conference of the Central Council for Health Education in London, Professor J. A. Nixon made the provocative statement that well-fed children are a permanent menace to authority. The stronger and larger they become the less regard do they have for the comfort of their elders. To decide the question one's own school days must be reviewed. In every class there always was one child with outstanding criminal ability; one child whose smallest gesture could transform the teacher from a rational being into a ravening wolf; one child against whom the most searing sarcasm became mere clownish repartee. Contrary to expectation, the child who possessed these abilities never was the pale, intelligent sort, but some gross, bucolic youth. The simplest geometrical proposition produced in him every symptom of death by strangulation, and yet when it came to the organisation of outrages he was logical, far-sighted and sensitive to new ideas. With quick intelligence he would explain to his henchmen how he made that low insistent whistle, which, while remaining elusive, did so much to unsettle inexperienced masters; but, if asked where Madagascar was, his eyes glazed over, his head drooped down, and a gentle silence pervaded the room. Those who viewed this inanimate, unfeeling creature scarcely could credit the fact that a short while before it had been throbbing with irrepressible, violent life. It is difficult to conceive any adequate explanation of the phenomenon, but there is reassurance to be found in another statement made by Professor Nixon. "Their ideas of discipline deteriorate as their physical condition improves," he says. On the assumption that the converse also is true, a well-aimed chalk eventually must produce obedience.

COURT AND PERSONAL

One of the busiest weeks on record will open to-day for the King and Queen, whose dinner party at Buckingham Palace to-night will be remarkable for the number of foreign Royalties present, including the King and Queen of Denmark, who have arrived in London for the Royal wedding.

The King and Queen will give a party at Windsor Castle on Thursday for the employés on the Royal estate, in honour of the wedding of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina. All the indoor servants at the Castle and garden employés will be included in the party, which will be entertained in the riding school.

The Duke and Duchess of York will be present at the St. Andrew's Eve Ball next Thursday night, at Grosvenor House, London, in aid of the Scottish Women's Hospital Memorial Association, of which the Duchess is president. Their Royal Highnesses will dance in the "Sixteensome" Reel, arranged by the Scots' Guards, and the Duke will wear full Highland dress.

The Duke and Duchess of Rutland are in residence at Belvoir Castle, where they have been entertaining a large family party. Violet Duchess of Rutland is remaining in London at present, and to-morrow will open a bazaar in the Grosvenor Hall, in aid of the Sisters of St. Saviour's Priory and their poor in East London. The Marchioness of Anglesey is presiding at the bazaar, which will be continued on Wednesday.

The Earl of Dartmouth and Lady Joan Legge have arrived at Torquay, where they intend to spend the winter. Lord and Lady Louth have returned to Summerfield House, Elstree, from London, and will be there for Christmas. Lord and Lady Dunsany intend to leave London at the beginning of next month for Dunsany Castle, Co. Meath, where they will remain till the spring. Mr. and Lady Margaret Muntz, whose marriage took place last week, have arrived at Nice, and will spend their honeymoon at the Château de la Garaupe, which has been lent to them by Sir Henry and Lady Norman.

Much Irish interest will be aroused by the exhibition of Royal portraits by Mr. Philip de Laszlo, which will be opened to-morrow in the Knoedler Galleries. The pictures are extremely attractive, and the portraits of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina are pronounced to be the best seen hitherto of Their Royal Highness; but Mr. de Laszlo has a special link with Ireland in his wife, who is a daughter of the late Mr. Henry Guinness, of Burton Hall, Stillorgan, and a sister of Senator Henry Seymour Guinness.

Sir Lynden L. Macassey, K.B.E., K.C., who has just been elected treasurer of the Middle Temple for the ensuing year, is an Ulsterman, being the son of the late Mr. Macassey, of Holywood, Co. Down. Few Irishmen have held so many important appointments and taken part in so many Commissions, Tribunals and Conferences, especially during the European War.

The Misses Eason have issued invitations for a dance at their home in Monkstown on Wednesday.

Mr. Steuart Wilson and the "Good Companions" were invited to meet the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods after Mr. Wilson's lecture at the Royal Dublin Society. Mr. Woods, who is a prize winner of the Feis Ceoil, is a member of the "Good Companions," whose singing of the Elizabethan songs was greatly admired.

Señorita Conchita Supervia, while in Dublin, spent much time investigating the collections of Irish folk-song, in which, as an enthusiast for the music of her own country, she was interested. She gave a Spanish dinner at the Shelbourne Hotel, where no English was spoken. Professor and Mrs. Starkie were among the guests.

ENJOYABLE BELFAST CONCERT

SCOTTISH NIGHT AT THE ULSTER HALL

The popular concert at the Ulster Hall last Saturday night, promoted by the Belfast Corporation, took the form of a "Scottish Night," the auditorium being packed with an enthusiastic audience, even the orchestra seats on the platform being occupied.

National dances in Highland costume were given by clever groups of children from the Gardner Studio, the scenes being picturesque, while the movements were graceful. The music was supplied by a Highland piper—Mr. F. J. B. Hope—in full national dress, and he also played selections at intervals.

The principal dancers were:—Doris Crichton, Desney Neill, Joyce Rowe, Hilda Porter, Billie Erskine, Charlie Delargy, Eileen Moffatt, Peggy Rutter, Pat McAllister, Josephine Reid, Rosemary Thallon, Margaret Allen, Shiela Ross, Veronica Rowe, Beth and Dot Russell. The clever little ones went through the steps of Highland flings, reels, and the Seam Truibhas with remarkable precision, and a Scottish ensemble was impressive.

Miss Eileen Ervine, a contralto of great promise, with even quality of voice and a full, deep register, sang several Scottish melodies, in a couple of which she was too sentimental in interpretation. Her best numbers were "Ca the Yowes to the Knowes" and "Will ye no come back again?" Miss Ervine should make a valuable addition to local concert platforms.

Organ solos with a Scottish flavour were played by Captain C. J. Brennan, Mus.Bac., who also led the big audience in "community singing," a feature of the evening which was much enjoyed.

Impersonations of Harry Lauder, the Scottish comedian, were given by Mr. Adam Kirkpatrick.

The pianoforte accompaniments were played by Mr. Jack McKeown, A.R.C.O.

ART OF ULSTER

NOTABLE CONTRIBUTIONS TO LITERATURE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Sunday.

Mr. R. May, the well-known antiquarian, of Belfast, whose exhibitions of Irish prints, books and letters in London and Belfast have been seen by many Irish societies and individuals, lectured on "The Archæology, Art and Literature of Ulster" at Blackfriars Hall this evening.

From the period of the flint implements at the raised beach of Larne, Mr. May traced the archæological evolution in Ulster, referring to the bronze age forts, particularly in the neighbourhood of Arts Fort, and to the remains of early Christian architecture in such ruins as Shankhill and the Abbey of Maville.

The art of Ulster was well represented by its musical tradition and by the work of the illuminators and goldsmiths to be seen in the Belfast Museum. To the literature of Ireland, said Mr. May, Ulster had made notable contributions. There was the work of the Rev. Thomas Drennan and Sir Samuel Ferguson, a Belfastman.

Miss Annie May, L.R.A.M., contributed a selection of Ulster melodies on the piano at the close of the lecture.

HUNGARY DEMANDS LEAGUE DISCUSSION

WANTS YUGOSLAV NOTE EXAMINED

ITALY SUPPORTS MAGYAR REQUEST

REMARKABLE "COMPLICITY" ALLEGATION

HUNGARY has asked for an immediate discussion by the League of Nations of the Yugoslav Note, with the serious charges it makes against her, and Italy will strongly support this demand.

In a semi-official announcement at Rome it was stated:—

"Responsible Italian circles are following with great attention the developments which the indictment submitted by M. Yevtitch (the Yugoslav Foreign Minister) and the Little Entente may provoke in the League at Geneva and elsewhere.

"The same circles fully recognise the right of Hungary to ask for an immediate discussion by the League Council of such accusations, and this Hungarian view will be definitely supported by Italy's representatives in the League.

"Responsible Italian circles consider that a nation cannot be left under such grave accusations as those advanced against Hungary by the Yugoslav Memorandum. They regard the situation as a delicate one, but do not think that it can lead to immediate complications of a more serious nature."

It is alleged, says Reuter, that Yugoslavia will publish information, hitherto suppressed, showing the complicity of Italy—presumably in the harbouring of terrorists—should Italy take the side of Hungary at Geneva.

A "VITAL QUESTION"

The Hungarian representative in Geneva has officially requested M. Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, to place Yugoslavia's complaint against Hungary on the agenda of the extraordinary meeting of the League Council during the coming week.

That request meets with unanimous approval in the Hungarian Press.

"The entire public opinion of Hungary," writes the Pester Lloyd, "unanimously approves the Government's step at the League of Nations, and identifies itself with the desire of the Government to have questions raised by Yugoslavia examined without delay."

The Budapest Hirlap states:—"Without the shadow of a doubt Hungary has the right to demand an urgent investigation of Yugoslavia's charges; for no nation can take such terrible accusations lying down."

The Pesti Naplo writes:—"From now on let us have sensible discussions. Empty accusations can no longer be allowed to pillory Hungary and disturb the peace of Europe for months to come. The question is, at the very least, as vital for Hungary as it is for Yugoslavia."

YUGOSLAVIA'S EVIDENCE

The Yugoslav memorandum, which will be handed to the League Secretariat in the course of the next few days, is stated to be based on—

(1)—The evidence of the terrorists arrested in connection with the Marseilles crime;

(2)—The evidence produced at the trial of those other terrorists who prepared an attempt on the life of King Alexander in December, 1933, at Zagreb; and

(3)—The confession of Jelka Podogorolec, a girl associated for several years with Gustav Pertchetch, one of the leaders in the organisation of the Marseilles crime.

It is supported by copies of official documents, instructions to Hungarian officers, and reports to Hungarian Ministries.

The charges against the Hungarian Government can be summarised as follow:

They permitted the organisation of bands of terrorists on Hungarian soil. These terrorists were provided with fictitious identity papers and passports, and were allowed to move freely in Hungary. They were supplied with weapons, explosives and bombs, and were helped and instructed in the use of them. They were provided with money and other help. The camp at Yanka Puszta, where the terrorists were trained, was under the protection of the authorities.

Many details are given of the conditions of life there. The target at which the gangsters used to practise rifle and pistol-firing is stated to have been a life-size portrait of King Alexander.

TERRORISTS' PASSPORTS

It is alleged that the passports supplied to these men were all genuine, with properly registered numbers, but fictitious names. In many cases the numbers were duplicated from those of passports delivered to reputable persons, so that inquirers should be put off the scent. The names of various officials with whom the conspirators trafficked are indicated.

Although many of the trails of these conspirators led across the frontier into Italy, all references to Italy are being carefully kept out of the Yugoslav memorandum, as it is desired to avoid any complications with the Italian Government.

It is alleged, however, that if the Italian Government attempts to champion the cause of Hungary, when the matter comes before the Council, then Yugoslavia will publish all the information which has been suppressed, showing the complicity of Italy.

In these circumstances very grave developments might arise, and every attempt will be made to keep Italy out of the case.

There is considerable speculation as to what course the Council can pursue even in the event of Yugoslavia proving her case against Hungary. Hungary is not, however, going to allow herself to be saddled with the responsibility without a severe fight. She may have some unexpected card up her sleeve.

"BABES IN THE WOOD"

AMERICAN CHILDREN MYSTERY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CARLISLE (PENNSYLVANIA), Sunday.

The mystery of the bodies of three young girls which were found cuddled together on the mountainside near here on Saturday has deepened with the discovery of a man and a woman shot dead in a shack at Altoona, Pennsylvania, some sixty miles away.

One theory is that the girls, whose ages appear to be about 5, 10 and 14, respectively, were members of a party touring the Gettysburg battlefields. It is suggested that they were the victims of accidental monoxide poisoning, and were abandoned by their terror-stricken parents.

Meanwhile, according to the New York Enquirer, the police are searching for three madmen who are believed to be the murderers of the children.

It was two woodmen tramping through a thicket who first stumbled on the three little girls nestling so comfortably together that at first they seemed asleep. An expensive blanket was tucked around them.

The Coroner expressed the opinion that the girls had been dead for less than twenty-four hours, and that they had been brought to the spot where they were found after they had died. Three doctors who were charged with the task of carrying out a post-mortem examination of the children all said that they were choked to death.

PARIS "VICE SQUAD" RAIDS MONTMARTRE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

Over 500 pleasure-seekers in Montmartre had their enjoyment interrupted when the Paris "vice squad" made a sudden monster raid on the quarter. Altogether some 168 persons were detained. Of these, 29 have already been charged with various offences, and 20 foreigners not in possession of identity papers have been detained for further action.

Thirty large police lorries suddenly drew up in the side streets off the Boulevard Rochechouart. Plain-clothes men surrounded half-a-dozen cafés. No one was allowed in or out.

Amid a chorus of indignation and protest the policemen proceeded to examine the papers of those present. Those whose papers were in order were allowed to go, but the remainder were taken off to the police station for further investigation.

An outbreak of diphtheria in the Claudy (Co. Derry) district has affected a large number of children, and the schools have been closed in an effort to check the spread of the disease.

TO THE CAPE BY AUTOGYRO

MRS. VICTOR BRUCE'S FLIGHT

Mrs. Victor Bruce, who left Lympne just before 8 a.m. yesterday on the start of her flight to the Cape by autogyro, arrived at Dijon in the afternoon. She will resume her flight to-day.

She hopes to accomplish the journey in a week, and to return by air, her object being to be back in England well before Christmas. She is accompanied by an aeroplane, piloted by Mr. Pugh, which carries spare parts and a supply of petrol. She intends to follow the western route selected by Mrs. Mollison during her record flight.

Mrs. Victor Bruce's autogyro is equipped with a 3,000 candle-power light to assist in landing in difficult places. The machine has a range of 500 miles.

During the flight across the Sahara Mrs. Bruce will be accompanied by a D.H. Dragon air liner.

The autogyro is of the latest type, and is similar to that used by Scotland Yard for traffic control experiments.

FREE STATE RIDERS

MORE TORONTO SUCCESSES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TORONTO, Sunday.

The team of Irish Free State horsemen did exceptionally well in the military jumping contest over a difficult figure-of-eight course at the Toronto Horse Show last night.

They obtained first and second places through Captain D. J. Corry, riding Salmon Leap and Slievenamon respectively. Captain C. C. J. Adwin, of the United States Army, riding Avocat, was third, and Captain A. F. Ahearn, riding Ireland's Own, was fourth.

The Chilean Army team won first and second places in the military event, in which three jumpers competed abreast. The Irish Free State team put up a good show and won third place.

DR. VON DEHN

Dr. Georg von Dehn, formerly German Minister to the Irish Free State, has presented his letters of credence to King Carol of Rumania, to whose Court at Bucharest he has been accredited. Dr. von Dehn's official speech, as well as the King's reply, was in the German language, in which His Majesty and the new Minister also conversed privately afterwards. King Carol was wearing the insignia of the Black Eagle Order, which was one of the highest German decorations before the war.

WOMEN'S DRESS

LORD CHAMBERLAIN'S STATEMENT

The following statement was issued from the Lord Chamberlain's office last night:—

"In view of certain wholly unauthorised, inaccurate and misleading statements that have been published in certain Sunday newspapers, the Lord Chamberlain announces that there are no further official orders as regards qualifications or restrictions as to the dress regulations for ladies attending the Royal wedding Service in Westminster Abbey on Thursday, November 29, other than that morning dress with hats should be worn as already announced."

MORE ROYAL GUESTS

A large party who landed at Folkestone yesterday included Prince and Princess George of Greece and their two children, Prince Peter and Princess Eugenie; Prince and Princess Rene of Bourbon, Prince and Princess Christopher of Greece, Princess Marie of Greece, and Admiral Johnnides.

The Royal party travelled in specially reserved Pullman cars on the boat train to Victoria Station, London.

A large number of plain clothes and uniformed police officers were on duty at the harbour.

Lord Claud Hamilton, Equerry-in-Waiting, welcomed the Royal guests at Victoria Station on behalf of the King. They drove to Buckingham Palace.

WAITING CROWDS

CHEERS FOR THE PRINCESS

Crowds who waited outside Buckingham Palace throughout yesterday morning saw Princess Marina leave with the Duke of Kent in his black sports car.

The people rushed across the road and cheered the Royal couple. Princess Marina smiled and waved to them. The Duke drove his fiancée to York House.

Earlier the Princess and the Duke had accompanied the King and Queen, Prince and Princess Nicholas and the other Royal guests at Buckingham Palace to Service in the private chapel of the Palace.

During the morning the Queen drove to Londonderry House to visit the Christmas Exhibition of the War Service Legion.

The Queen, who was received by Lord Londonderry, remained at the exhibition for nearly an hour.

Prince Paul, the Regent of Yugoslavia, with Princess Paul went for a drive.

The Duke of Kent and Princess Marina and the other Royal guests returned to the Palace for luncheon.

EX-PREMIERS AS WITNESSES

FRENCH POLICE OFFICER'S LIBEL ACTION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

The whole gamut of the "Political Maffia," the Stavisky political and financial scandals, and the mystery of the death of Judge Prince will to-morrow form the ground-work of a sensational libel suit.

This is the case of Detective-Inspector Bony, famous in connection with the Stavisky and Prince cases, against the French weekly paper, Gringoire. He is claiming £50,000 damages.

Bony has called among his witnesses MM. Chautemps and Tardieu, ex-Prime Ministers; M. George Mandel, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs in the present Cabinet; M. Henri Cheron, Minister of Justice during the greater part of the Prince and Stavisky inquiries; the examining magistrate at Dijon, where Prince's body was found; M. Thome, an ex-Director of the Sûreté-General; and M. Leon Bailby, the proprietor of the newspaper, Le Jour.

Carbucca, the defendant and proprietor of the paper, will call among others M. Ordonneau, the examining magistrate in charge of the Stavisky case, and Commissioner Guillaume, who drew up the famous report on Prince's private life.

BLUESHIRTS CLASH

HALL INVADED AT ROSCOMMON

INTRUDERS CLEARED OUT BY POLICE

THERE was an exciting incident in Roscommon yesterday, where rival meetings of the Blue Shirt organisation were held.

While Dr. O'Higgins, T.D., was addressing an indoor meeting the door of the hall was rushed by opposition Blue Shirts, and there was a general melee.

One man, who was said to be a county director, was thrown down.

Civic Guards were quickly on the scene, and had to draw their batons before the intruders were cleared out of the hall.

PROMISES UNFULFILLED

The first meeting was addressed by Messrs. Frank MacDermot, M. Brennan, T.D., and Dr. O'Higgins, T.D.

Mr. MacDermot said that their party was not enthusiastic enough about their policy, because if people were enthusiastic enough about the things that really matter they had no time to get into petty squabbles, and he was sorry to say that Roscommon was a part of the country where there were most squabbles. He hoped that the meeting would be the beginning of a better state of things. The Government's promises to relieve unemployment had been falsified, and they had now to spend large sums of money on relief schemes and free meat schemes.

If the Government wanted to establish the sovereignty of the country they would all wish them good luck in their endeavour, but the shouting about a republic was superficial. He was not afraid of a republic, and he did not take President de Valera's statements about the republic seriously. When Mr. de Valera and his friends talked about a republic, if they meant a republic for thirty-two counties, they were deceiving the people, and if they meant a republic for twenty-six counties they would not have to fight for it. If they thought they had no mandate for declaring a republic for the twenty-six counties they could ask the people for authority to do it. Instead of doing this, President de Valera asks Mr. Thomas: will Britain make any economic reprisals, if he declares a republic?

Mr. MacDermot said that he was always prepared to take a clear and honourable position among the Commonwealth of Nations.

A delegate in the hall asked about the split, and said that it was deplorable.

THE BLUE SHIRT DIVISION

Dr. O'Higgins said that he had put a number of questions to General O'Duffy but the only reply he could get was a long letter in the Press stating that General O'Duffy had no time to reply. He challenged General O'Duffy to say that there was one item of difference between the Central Council and the General on the question of policy. There was no man in the country more puzzled than he as to the reasons for General O'Duffy's resignation.

It was at this point that the opposition crowd burst into the hall.

When quiet was restored Dr. O'Higgins said that he had stood up against the Black and Tans, and he was not going to be stopped by the new Bolshies.

A resolution of confidence in the Central Council was passed unanimously.

THE SECOND MEETING

WHY GENERAL O'DUFFY RESIGNED

After the scene in the hall a public meeting outside was addressed by Mr. P. Belton, T.D., but when General O'Duffy arrived the meeting was held inside.

General O'Duffy said that he resigned from the United Ireland Party because they had deserted the farmers. There was an acute difference of opinion between him and the Executive on the question of policy.

Mr. Cosgrave, he said, had a better national record than any member of the Cabinet, and it was he who had built up the office which the President occupied to-day.

CONVENTION IN CARLOW

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CARLOW, Sunday.

At a United Ireland Party convention held in the Town Hall here to-day there was a fair attendance of delegates present from the counties of Carlow and Kilkenny, and addresses were delivered by Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, T.D.; Mr. R. Mulcahy, T.D., and Mr. Holohan, T.D.

"GOODS OF MILITARY VALUE"

ORDER TO GERMAN FIRMS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Sunday.

German export manufacturers are being refused foreign currency for importing raw materials or advertising their wares abroad unless they also produce goods of military value.

Thus, a foreign firm which makes household machinery has been refused currencies for importing spare parts because it would not produce goods required by the German authorities "for defensive purposes."

Another difficulty faced by German export firms is revealed by a letter published in the Frankfurter Zeitung, which says: "We owe our export position largely to our patents. But foreign currencies are not obtainable for paying the patent fees abroad or for new patents."

Another restriction on the export of marks is announced to-day by the Foreign Exchange Control. Henceforth ten marks is the maximum which will be placed at the disposal of foreigners from coupons falling due in any one day. Higher amounts will not be transferred abroad, adds the announcement.

ITALY AND GOLD STANDARD

BANK RATE RAISED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Sunday.

There are indications that Signor Mussolini is anxious about the Italian financial situation, in view of the country's adverse trade balance and the Budget deficit. The increase in the Bank rate from 3 to 4 per cent. is part of the drive that is being made to deflate prices further, attract foreign capital, and prevent a flight of gold from Italy.

Mussolini is still intent upon protecting the lira and preventing Italy being forced off the gold standard unless this is done in company with other gold standard countries.

The decision to raise the Bank rate from 3 to 4 per cent. and to 4½ per cent. for loans took most people by surprise. It is a reversal of the former policy, which was to cheapen credit in order to help the producer.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA

NO MILITARY ALLIANCE

OFFICIAL PARIS DENIAL

MISREADING OF SPEECH

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

IT was announced by the French Foreign Office yesterday afternoon that "all statements as to a military agreement between France and Russia are without foundation."

This official statement was completed by the following semi-official "explanation":—

"The sole aim of the political rapprochement, which was brought about between the two countries several months ago, is the organisation of peace, and consequently it is not directed against any other power."

The report appears to have been based on a mistranslation or misreading of the speech of M. Archimbaud in the Chamber. According to the Journal Officiel (the French "Hansard"), he said:—

"Russia and France, understanding that peace was threatened, wanted to guarantee their security. Was there between these two great nations a military treaty or simply a close union? It was undeniable that this entente existed, and it was not for him to say if this entente, this union, was an alliance.

"The Government alone could say so. He believed, however, that it was useful to state at the present moment that it was a definite union and a complete entente between France and Russia, which would stabilise Europe and assure peace. To guarantee its security Russia had a large army well equipped and well trained to offer to France in case of conflict with Germany."

The French Press yesterday morning, commenting on the Army Credits debate in the Chamber on Friday, offered a striking contrast with the sensational despatches which appeared in the foreign Press. General Maurin's speech filled the headlines, and was discussed in the editorials, while that of M. Archimbaud was virtually ignored.

MOSCOW NON-COMMITTAL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Saturday.

The Soviet Foreign Office is non-committal regarding M. Archimbaud's declaration in the French Chamber on Friday.

That there is a warm rapprochement between the two countries is well known. This rapprochement, it is considered, sprang from the fact that Soviet Russia needed aid from an advanced industrial country for its own building up, and that France needed a strong and well-prepared Power to offset the German threat.

The Soviet would also not object to some safeguard against a possible threat in the East.

Some well-informed circles interpret the statement in the French Chamber as a suggestion that a military agreement is a possibility of the future, and think that the Soviet refuse to commit themselves one way or the other, because they want to remain aloof until the French internal situation is stabilised.

FREE STATE TRADE WITH GERMANY

DELEGATION RETURNS TO DUBLIN

The Free State delegation, which has been visiting Berlin with a view to negotiating a trade agreement with Germany, has now returned to Dublin. The members made a report on their mission to President de Valera on Saturday morning. The results of their efforts have not so far been made public.

The delegation consisted of Messrs. R. C. Ferguson, Assistant Secretary, Department of Industry; J. V. Fahy, Department of External Affairs; and J. Adams, Department of Agriculture.

THE BANKING COMMISSION

ADJOURNMENT TILL DECEMBER 7TH

The second sitting of the Banking Commission was held on Saturday, under the chairmanship of Mr. Joseph Brennan. The proceedings, as on the previous day, were held in private.

Arrangements were made for a survey of statistical and documentary material bearing on the terms of reference.

A notice inviting evidence from the public was authorised for issue to the Press.

The Commission adjourned till 7th December.

BELFAST SHIPBUILDING

LAUNCH OF OIL TANKER

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Saturday.

Messrs. Workman Clark (1928), Limited, successfully launched from their North Yard, Belfast, to-day, the single screw motor oil tank vessel Acavus, built to the order of the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co., Limited, which is an associated company of the Shell group. The Acavus is built on the grid system to the structural designs of Messrs. Curchin-Watson, and under Lloyd's Special Survey to comply with their highest class 100 A.1 for the carriage of petroleum in bulk. The dimensions are 460' 0" x 59' 0" x 34' 0" to upper deck. All the latest equipment is fitted for the efficient working of the vessel, including duplex steam-driven pumps, each capable of discharging 200 tons of heavy oil per hour.

ISLANDERS' RATES

COMPLAINT AT GALWAY COUNCIL

During a discussion at the Galway County Council on Saturday concerning the rate collection on Inchaquin Island, Mr. Corbett said that the islanders had been encouraged not to pay. If the collector was not doing duty he should be dismissed.

The Secretary said that the collector was working hard. He got decrees in court, but could not enforce them, as neither he nor the bailiff would be given a boat to go on to the island.

Mr. O'Toole said that he would not blame the people for not paying. They were denied certain facilities, and children going to school on the mainland had to remain on the mainland for days when the sea was rough. A causeway should be built between the island and the mainland.

A seven-year old girl, Rosaleen McKenzie, Ballyarton, Co. Derry, was severely scalded when she fell into a pot of boiling water in a neighbour's house on Saturday night. She is in Derry City Infirmary.

THE MINIMUM PRICE

CATTLE MARKET DIFFICULTIES

GRADING SYSTEM URGED

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

THE minimum price fixed by Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, for heifers and bullocks—namely, 25s. per cwt.—applies only to beasts intended for home consumption and for export to Great Britain and Northern Ireland. There is no fixed minimum price for beasts intended for export to foreign countries.

In the Dublin Cattle Market last Thursday beasts for Belgium were sold at prices varying from 14s. to 16s. per cwt. The numbers, however, purchased for this market were small, and did not affect the general market to any extent.

The need for the introduction of a system of grading of cattle has been pressed upon Dr. Ryan by cattle salesmasters. It is pointed out that only a very small percentage of the cattle on offer at the Dublin Market would come within the category of the highest class. From 75 to 80 per cent. would be secondary cattle, for which the fixed minimum price could be economically paid. The request has been made for a system of grading, with a minimum price for each grade.

MINISTER'S ATTITUDE

It is understood that the Minister has agreed to consider whether some such system could be worked out. Without it the deadlock which has arisen in the Dublin Market is likely to continue. Many lots of cattle have been offered at each market during the last two or three weeks, and they still remain unsold, and under present conditions there is no prospect of their being sold. Meanwhile they are being kept in Dublin at considerable expense to the owners.

FREE MEAT TO-DAY

Thousands of poor people in all parts of the Irish Free State will have meat for dinner at the expense of the Government to-day, when the free meat scheme comes into operation.

Vouchers for the supply of beef were distributed during last week to people who are in receipt of unemployment assistance or outdoor relief by the Relieving Officers and Labour Exchanges, and on and from to-day they are exchangeable for supplies from the butchers. The quantity of meat obtainable will vary according to the number in each family. Single women have received vouchers entitling them to three pounds of meat per week, while men with a wife and two or more children were given vouchers enabling them to procure nine pounds of meat.

VOUCHER-HOLDERS

Every person who is drawing relief money in any shape or form is entitled to meat under the scheme. There will be no obligation to "shop" at any particular centre. Voucher-holders in the North Strand can obtain meat in Rathmines. The voucher-holder also is entitled to any kind of meat. He can have roast or stewing meat, and he will not be asked to take shin beef or neck portions. Mutton will not be distributed under the scheme.

Over five thousand vouchers were given during the latter portion of last week to people in receipt of outdoor relief. It is estimated that the total quantity of meat given out under the scheme will represent approximately 30 per cent. of the amount sold by Free State butchers in a year.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

A SEA OF TROUBLE

In a leading article to-day The Times observes:—The disquieting state of Europe has been reflected in the record of the League at Geneva during the past week and in the postponement of what was to have been the chief item on its programme—the question of the Saar. Even with the Saar thus temporarily in the background, the proceedings have been highly controversial and agreements hard to find. But at a moment when the League method finds almost as many detractors as supporters, it may well be borne in mind that the controversies have their origin outside Geneva; that the atmosphere of the League has, as usual, tended to assuage a bitterness which runs riot elsewhere, and that the League would be no true image of the world's present condition unless its debates reflected dissension.

The advantage of the League method is that it injects a little cool sense into heated disputes, makes the discussion of peace terms possible even while war is actually being waged, imposes a delay which in some cases is invaluable, and can bring into the open complexes which will never be cured so long as they are repressed. If the difference between Yugoslavia and Hungary were left to be settled between Belgrade and Budapest there might, indeed, be little chance of avoiding war. The Yugoslav Government have made formidable accusations against the Hungarian Administration, to which the latter profess their full ability to reply. It is important that both parties should realise that the League is not a weapon to be used by a State against its opponents, but a Tribune to be invoked in the interests of international justice and peace.

The treatment of the Saar question is delayed by the inability of the League Committee which is sitting in Rome to reach agreement on the different technical points which will be raised by the result of the plebiscite, whichever way the voting goes. It is at least satisfactory that there French and German representatives are able to discuss business side by side. It may soon become altogether impossible if provocative statements continue to be made by responsible public men in the two countries.

JAPAN'S CLAIM TO PARITY

"JUSTIFIABLE," SAYS U.S. SENATOR

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Sunday.

Japan's decision to terminate the Washington Treaty was "justifiable," declared Senator Nye, speaking at the Foreign Policy luncheon here yesterday.

The Senator called on Britain and the United States to grant Japan naval equality if they honestly sought arms reduction.

KILLED AT KILLESTER

The body of a young man, later identified as being that of John Dowdall, single, of Ballybough, Dublin, was found on the railway line close to Killester station on last Saturday evening.

Shortly before the Belfast-Dublin express train passed through the station, at about 5.15 p.m., a young man entered the station and asked when the next train left for Raheny. He then crossed over to the opposite platform and paced up and down, as if waiting for a train. The express then passed through, and a few minutes later the body was discovered.

GERMAN CHURCH DISPUTE

CONFISCATION OF PAPER

DESERTIONS FROM REICHBISHOP

ENGLISH MODEL SUGGESTED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Sunday.

THE police this afternoon confiscated Reichbishop Mueller's organ, "The Gospel in the Third Reich." The reason for the confiscation of the newspaper was the publication of an article by the Reichbishop, in which he demanded that "every means" must be used by the German Christians to attain their aim.

The article stated that "Martin Luther did not fight with palm leaves and peace songs," and it called on Dr. Goebbels to forbid all publications and leaflets issued by the opposition clergy.

Meanwhile in Wuertemburg the German Christians who had been forcibly occupying the offices of Bishop Wurm, despite the Bishop's reinstatement by Herr Hitler, evacuated the building this week. When Bishop Wurm came to the building to take over possession he was given a festive reception by local pastors and their wives.

The Church of England organisation may be adopted as a model for Evangelical Church constitution in Germany, if a solution of the present dispute should not prove possible.

This suggestion was made at a conference of the Superintendents of Reichbishop Mueller's Church at Koenigsberg, East Prussia. It was announced that a National Government Commission had been set up, under the chairmanship of an expert named Herr von Heinze, with the task of examining the legal basis for the Reichchurch government.

Meanwhile there are continued signs that not all of Reichbishop Mueller's colleagues are at one with him in feeling that the Church "war" should be continued.

Following the decision of the Bishop of Baden to break away from Reichbishop Mueller and re-establish the Independent Baden Church "in the interests of Church peace," has come a remarkable sermon from the Bishop of Hesse-Nassau, Dr. Dietrich, hitherto a spirited supporter of the Reichchurch.

Preaching in Frankfurt-on-Main Dr. Dietrich made a powerful plea for moderation, in the course of which he said: "Our true Lutheran creed is endangered by a multitude of foes, including adherents of idolatry and paganism, atheists and men who think they are virtuous enough to talk of God without the medium of the Church. To God in Heaven it is all the same whether a country has a Democratic or a National-Socialistic Constitution. All are equal in His eyes. . . . The fight in the Evangelical Church must cease, and we Evangelical Christians must forgive each other."

SLIGO ARSON CHARGE

CLAIMS FOR £8,000 COMPENSATION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

SLIGO, Saturday.

Abraham Crossley (31), ex-manager of the Sligo dépôt of Messrs. George Bates and Son, fruit importers, Belfast, and two ex-employés of the firm, Alfred Hill (25) and John Warnock (25), were found guilty of conspiring to burn Messrs. Bates' Sligo premises on last St. Patrick's night. Crossley and Hill were sentenced to nine months' imprisonment with hard labour, and Warnock to six months.

On a charge of conspiring to destroy four motor lorries belonging to Messrs. Bates, Crossley and Hill were sentenced to a further term of three months, and Warnock was found not guilty.

Crossley, a native of Belfast, it was stated in evidence, is a son-in-law of Mr. John Bates, managing director of the firm, and was manager of the Sligo branch for three years, up to a few weeks before the premises were destroyed.

Judge Moonan said that the evidence of the previous good character of the accused man given by the Rev. J. Keane, P.P., Cliffoney, the Rev. Mr. McElphatrick, Sligo, and Sergeant Healy had considerably reduced the sentences he intended to impose.

The jury, which the judge described as the most intelligent he had ever seen, was granted exemption from service for ten years.

Three ownerships are involved in the building and contents, which were completely destroyed, and on their behalf claims for malicious injury compensation totalling £8,000 are lodged with Sligo Corporation.

ARRESTS AND RELEASES

COLLECTION OF ANNUITIES

On Saturday night Patrick Waters, Coolagown, Castlelyons, Fermoy, an extensive farmer, and Timothy Sheehan, of the same district, were brought to Fermoy Civic Guard Barracks, where they are detained.

On Sunday Thomas Sheehan, Coolagown, and William Barrett, Towermore, in the Castlelyons district, also were arrested. Thomas Bailey, Ballinrush, Kilworth, was released.

Thomas Finn, P.C., Drummond, St. Mullins, County Carlow, was on Saturday taken into custody.

Thomas Hutchison, Newmarket, Thomastown, and John Brownrigg, Knocktopher, who were arrested and released, and subsequently re-arrested, have been again released.

Geo. Daunt, Killeagh, Geo. Tyner and his son, Richard, Glebe House, Killeagh, Midleton, County Cork, have been arrested and lodged in Midleton Barracks.

Defaulting annuitants in the Stradbally and Kilrossanty districts of County Waterford were visited on Saturday by the Ballymorris Flying Squad, County Kilkenny. Payments were forthcoming in every case, and no seizures were made.

MINERS FEARED DROWNED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NAGASAKI, Sunday.

It is feared that fifty-three miners have been drowned by a sudden inrush of the sea at the Matsushima colliery's submarine workings. Rescue work is proceeding, but it is felt to be virtually hopeless.

PARTY SYSTEM IN PARLIAMENT

AN ALTERNATIVE SUGGESTED

INTERESTING VIEWS AT A DUBLIN MEETING

"HAS Democratic Government Failed?" was the subject of an address delivered by Mr. B. O'Gorman, Auditor of the Technical Students' Literary and Debating Society of the Bolton street (Dublin) Vocational Education Institute, on Saturday night on the occasion of the inaugural meeting of the Society's eighth session.

Mr. L. E. O'Carroll, B.A., barrister, chief executive officer of the City Vocational Education Committee and President of the Debating Society, presided.

AUDITOR'S ADDRESS

The Auditor, in the course of his address, said that for some months they had been reading countless appeals to Fascism and dictatorship, for in this country, as in others, there was a profound discontent with Parliament as it existed to-day. They were well aware that the majority of electors felt no enthusiasm about casting votes for candidates of whom they knew next to nothing, and for a programme often best sponsored by a candidate that the voter liked least. It was evident that something would have to be done, as Parliament no longer commanded respect. There was a growing faith in forms of government other than the Parliamentary form. Parliament, he said, had lost respect because of the party system.

He asked was there an alternative to the party system, and said that there was the system of delegating to scientific committees with large powers all legislation before introducing it to the House. The other system was the Corporative State, with its system of vocational representation. He, however, proposed as a check to the party system the maintenance of a Senate free from the baneful denomination of a party caucus, but such a Chamber must not be a reflection of the Lower Chamber, nor, as it was in Ireland, a limbo for rejected deputies. He proposed that the Senate should be enlarged to ninety members, thirty of the members to be representative of universities, law, commerce, medicine, agriculture, art, literature, music and drama.

ALL INTERESTS REPRESENTED

He would gather these Senators in the following manner:—The four representing the universities could be elected by convocation of the National University and the Senate of Trinity College, giving each two representatives. The College of Surgeons and the College of Physicians could elect two members each. Law to have four representatives, two elected by the General Council of the Bar and two by the Incorporated Law Society. The agricultural and live stock industry to have the same number of members, and commerce to be represented by five, elected by the Associated Chambers of Commerce. Of the remaining nine seats in this section, representatives of literature, art, music, science, and drama would be nominated by the President of the Executive Council, and the four seats yet unoccupied could be held ex officio by the Governor of the Bank of Ireland, the President of the Stock Exchange, and two elected by the R.D.S. Council.

The next thirty members would be chosen or elected by the Trades Union Congress as representative of the other vocations, trades and occupations. Then the third section, comprised of thirty seats, would be proportionally representative of the chief religious denominations in Ireland. Ten to represent the clerical Orders to be appointed by the provincials, ten members of the secular clergy appointed by the hierarchy. The Church of Ireland would have five seats appointed by the General Synod, and the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church would appoint representatives to the last five seats.

In such a Senate the Church would hold the balance of power, the Auditor said.

THE TERM "POLITICIAN"

Senator Connolly, Minister for Lands, proposed a vote of thanks to the auditor, and said that he was a Senator, but was not a rejected deputy. It was, he said, regrettable that the term politician had come to mean something which it really did not mean, for politics should be one of the highest callings to the citizen of a State. Yet people were designated "politicians" as if it were a term of contempt, though they were struggling for the best that could be got for the people. He felt that it was a moral obligation on all intelligent people to take their part in politics. To take no interest in politics was to shirk one of the first duties that devolved upon them as citizens.

The auditor had said that the majority of people took no interest in the elections, but the fact that in 1933 eighty-one per cent. of the people voted at the elections did not support that statement. It was not true that the Government was controlled by the party machine. They had in this country the system of election known as proportional representation, under which even a comparatively small group was able to return its representative to Parliament, and make the view of the small minority heard throughout the whole country.

THE CORPORATIVE STATE

As regards the Corporative State, he sometimes felt intrigued to know whether what was meant by the Corporative State was really understood. Had they a clear notion of the differentiation between the Corporative State and a co-operative society? He would prefer the much abused Democratic State to leaving himself at the mercy of a system which presumed to direct them in what they should do every day of their lives.

As regarded the Senate, it might have served a proper purpose if it had been content to do revisionary and checking work. Great stress had been laid on how few bills the Senate had rejected. That was rather a naive suggestion, because it was only when they considered the type and nature of the bills that the Senate had rejected they would have an idea of its reactionary attitude.

LEGISLATION BY ORDER

Senator J. C. Douglas, in seconding the motion, said that he also was not a rejected deputy, but, if Senator Connolly had his way, he would very soon be a rejected Senator. He thought that the Auditor in suggesting that democracy had not been given a full trial was right, and he felt some sympathy with him when the Auditor said that there was a danger that the will of the people might be forgotten in a country governed on the party system. The party system was a limitation of democracy, and it would be better if there were more freedom from it.

Proceeding, he said that he doubted if the present trend to increase the power of the Executive was good, and would point out that they were giving more and more power to legislate by order. That was not necessarily undemocratic, but it was not full democracy, and if it went on it would increase and they would eventually get to something very near a dictatorship or at least dictatorship by a group. The time had come when it would be well to turn in the other direction, as he would like to see more democracy, not less.

THE SENATE'S RECORD

Referring to the question of a corporative State Senator Douglas said that he did not believe in some vocational body having complete power over the people. Senator Connolly, he said, had no experience of the Senate when not run on party lines, but in the first years of its existence there were no party whips, and if they examined the Senate's record of that time they would find that there was a great deal of freedom, which, he confessed, did not exist at the present time. He did not want to see institutions like the Royal Dublin Society and those associated with literature, music and the drama turned into political mediums, and very much doubted the wisdom of bringing the Church into the Senate or into Parliament.

The motion was supported by Mr. L. G. Sherlock, LL.D., who said that he agreed with the principle of a Second Chamber, which would carefully review legislation of the other House. He could not, however, agree with the suggestion of the Auditor as to its constitution.

The motion was adopted.

LABOUR LEADER'S VIEW

Mr. W. Norton, T.D., proposed that the Society was worthy of support, and said that he thought there was a lot of juvenile giddiness in the desire to have Cabinets and Executives pulled down. For economic reasons as well as on other grounds no country could be content to live in a state of instability and periodic revolutions. A Government must be given time to try out its programme. The Auditor proposed to give powers of government to ninety people, who would not be subject to any election, except to some form or other in which the man in the street would take no part. Did the Auditor mean taking people off the shelf and sending them into a Senate completely oblivious to all viewpoints? He believed that Parliamentary Government would be more respected if they could only think we were living in 1934 and not in 1734.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., seconded the motion, and said that democracy may not have succeeded, but it had not failed, because its roots were deep down in the good sense of judgment of the whole people. He could not conceive any Parliamentary body composed of experts, scientists and professors. Professors were political failures, for the most part.

Great laughter was here caused by somebody calling out, "What about Dev?"

Mr. McCarthy said that he had meant it to be understood that there were always exceptions. He would ask them to guard democracy against every attack, and, if necessary, preserve it with their very lives.

Alderman Breathnach, T.D., supported the motion with a speech in Irish, and it was adopted.

EXHIBITION OF IRISH GOODS

MINISTER'S PLEA FOR CRAFTSMEN

CORK WOMEN'S GOOD WORK

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Sunday.

The annual Christmas exhibition of Irish goods organised by the Women's Industrial Development Association Cork branch, was opened last night by Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, T.D., Minister for Local Government.

This year's exhibition represents a considerable advance on anything previously staged, and there is a wide variety of Irish-made articles on view.

Special features during the coming week will include lectures by the Rev. Dr. Paschal, O.M.Cap.; Professor J. Busteed, Mr. A. J. Magennis, chairman Cork Harbour Board, B.D.; Miss K. Mulcahy, M.A.; Mr. T. O'Gorman, secretary Distributive Workers' Association; Mr. Seamus O'Riain, B.A. An all-Irish night, mannequin displays of Irish-made garments, children's fancy dress competitions, concerts, knitting and rug-making competitions will also be features.

Mrs. T. Barry, who is hon. secretary, and the other women of the committee, have certainly made this year's exhibition a remarkable success.

INDUSTRIAL REVIVAL

Declaring the exhibition open, Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, T.D., said that there had been a tremendous industrial revival within the last few years and that tariffs had also limited the devastating foreign competition, but much still remained to be done through functions such as that exhibition. The Government was doing everything in its power to encourage native manufacturers, and in view of all that was being done it was disappointing to find that we continue to import large quantities of goods that could be manufactured equally well here. He said that other countries had benefited in the first nine months of this year by £55,000 of Irish money spent on cosmetics. An effort was now being made to make it possible for members of the Women's Industrial Development Association to fill their needs, if there are needs in this direction, without departing from the principle "Buy Irish Only."

"Let me say," he added, "I have no objection to the women using cosmetics, but so many Irish women have beauty unadorned that they need no unnatural aid."

Continuing, Mr. O'Kelly said that scarcely a week passes in which a beginning is not made with the manufacture of some new product. It was sometimes said that retailers were at fault in not putting forward Irish goods unless asked for them specifically, but Cork people had only to come to that exhibition this Christmas to find all the goods they needed.

SKILLED CRAFTSMEN

Making a plea for support for the work of Irish skilled craftworkers, the Minister said that the day of the small craftsman is by no mean over.

Throughout the country there were skilled craftsmen, whose work, marked by the stamp of individuality, was in the direct line of these products in this country in the past, which even now are the admiration of the connoisseur. Small industries distributed through the country would, more than anything else, help to bring about a proper balance in the national economy. He concluded with an appeal to buy Irish turf as fuel.

PIG INDUSTRY COUNCIL

NORTHERN GOVERNMENT'S NEW BILL

Under the Agricultural Marketing (Pig Industry) Bill, the text of which was issued on Saturday, the Northern Government proposes to establish a Pig Industry Council, which will take over from the Pigs Marketing Board the fixing of prices.

The Council will advise the Ministry on the granting of licences and the registration of contracts, production, marketing and grading of pigs and bacon.

The bill gives power to the Ministry to restrict the issue of licences to curers, to avoid or reduce excessive production of bacon, and provides that levies paid by producers shall be collected by curers, passed to the Ministry, and thence to the Pigs Marketing Board. For bacon curers the licence will be increased to ten pounds.

Heavy penalties are provided for offences under the bill, including three months' imprisonment and a fine not exceeding twenty pounds for giving false information as to returns.

Grading of dead pigs will start at curers' stores on 1st December, 1934.

In future every pig carcase within the standard dead-weights will be graded according to quality at the curers' stores. This means that payment cannot be made at the time of delivery, and that, therefore, every pig carcase will have to be identified. For this purpose carcase cards will be supplied to producers by curers or their agents at the time pigs are "booked." Each carcase card will bear a serial number and every producer will have to fill in his name and address on each card, and then, using the string provided, tie one card firmly to each pig carcase, either on the foreleg or as directed by the curer.

MINISTER AND ANNUITIES

REPLY TO MR. COSGRAVE

THE LAW TO BE ENFORCED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

KILKENNY, Sunday.

SPEAKING at Callan, County Kilkenny, to-night, Mr. Derrig, Minister for Education, said that Mr. Cosgrave told us that the farmers, if they find themselves unable to pay, are justified in showing opposition to the collection of annuities.

I think, said Mr. Derrig, we need have no doubt as to what the attitude of his Government would be towards the campaign of obstruction and intimidation that was sought to be waged. When a Government is confronted with a situation of that kind it has either to take steps to enforce the law or get out. So long as we have the confidence of the people we shall enforce the law. We do not desire to utilise the machinery of the Constitutional Amendment Act a moment longer than is necessary. Our opponents, who talk of their patriotism, Christianity and constitutionalism, have certainly not done much to improve matters.

It may be that the leaders have no influence with their followers. It is hard to see how they could have much in view of their contradictory and absurd utterances. One thing is certain—if the present methods of showing opposition are to be allowed to continue they would make an end of everything.

If the farmers are justified in showing opposition to paying their liabilities to the State for the sake of their wives and families, there is no reason why the farmer should pay anything to anybody if he thinks fit. The taxpayer will have to foot the bill to meet the obligations of the Land Commission under the 1923 Act, and also the general work of the Land Commission.

STUPID CAMPAIGN

We know that it is not those who were least able to pay who were backing the campaign. They were able to pay, but they foolishly thought that their stupid and impossible campaign would bring down the Government. Anybody who is hard pressed can always make an offer to the Land Commission, and if the case is genuine it will be considered. So long as there is a general campaign of non-payment in certain counties the Land Commission will have to deal with the situation.

Mr. Cosgrave tells us our whole attention should be concentrated on the possibilities of the English market. What are the big possibilities of the British market today for the British Dominions? The British Dominions have refused to scrap secondary industries for the sake of a possible free entry into the British market. We would be fools if we did not take advantage of every opportunity to build up our own industries.

The cattle problem is very serious. We are endeavouring to meet it under the new Cattle Act. If the farmers will co-operate in this, as in other matters, the situation can be greatly eased.

RELIEF WORKS IN COUNTY GALWAY

MR. HUGO FLINN'S VISIT

Mr. Hugo Flinn, T.D., Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance, has made an inspection of relief and other works in progress in County Galway. He made a careful examination of the working of the regulations governing the recruitment of labour, and the extent to which persons in receipt of unemployment assistance were being absorbed by the various works. In the progress of his examination, Mr. Flinn interviewed the officials in charge and examined their records to ascertain how many of the workmen were in receipt of unemployment assistance prior to their engagement.

The works provided in the county for the relief of unemployment include: peat development works in two areas, Ballymoe and Glenamaddy, for which a sum of £1,890 is available. Public health schemes for the provision of water supplies at Clonbur, Dunmore, Spiddal and Tully, near Clifden, are being carried out with the aid of grants amounting to approximately £3,000, and a grant of £5,500 is also being made for sewerage work in the Galway urban district.

THE COUNTY ROADS

The amount available from the Road Fund for the repair of county roads is nearly £24,000. A grant of £400 has been made for the development of a limestone quarry at Brackernagh, near Ballinasloe.

The unemployed in the rural areas will be materially assisted by the minor relief schemes, of which 115 have been sanctioned to date, covering the entire county. These works include the construction and repair of accommodation and bog-roads, drainage improvements and the erection of small bridges.

Generally every effort is being made to have relief works started at once, so as to give employment to as many men as possible.

Mr. Flinn hopes to visit other counties in the near future and continue his investigations.

A MAGISTRATE'S DEATH

PATHOLOGIST CALLED IN

POLICE STILL MAKING INQUIRIES

THE mystery of the death of Mr. Jeffreys Charles Allen, an eighty-six years old magistrate and sportsman, who a week ago was found dead at his home, Mill House, Upwey, Weymouth, severely burnt with his head in a fire grate, is not expected to be unravelled at the inquest to-day.

The only witness likely to be called is Mr. Allen's male nurse, for the South Dorset Coroner stated on Saturday that he would adjourn the inquiry after evidence of identification had been taken.

Mr. Allen's death took place on the same day that he returned from a local nursing home, where he had been undergoing special treatment as he was feeble and almost blind.

Since then the police have been making inquiries, and Sir Bernard Spilsbury, the Home Office pathologist, was called to make a post-mortem examination.

POLICE INVESTIGATIONS

The Chief Constable of Dorset, Major L. W. Peel Yeates, told a reporter yesterday that he was not prepared to make a statement at the moment. "Our inquiries are being continued," he added.

Mr. Allen's solicitor, Mr. John Adams Forward, of Chard, arrived at Weymouth last night to attend the inquest, while a cousin, Mr. Harry E. Burlton, a solicitor, of Richmond, Surrrey, was expected later.

Mr. Forward told a reporter that Mr. Allen was his close personal friend and client for a quarter of a century. "He had two surviving relatives, both cousins," he said, "Miss Edith Allen, of Stockholm Manor, Ilminster, and Mr. Harry Burlton."

It was learned last night that Mr. Allen had at one time assumed the surname of Allen-Jefferys, but later reverted to the surname of Allen. It was for family reasons that he changed his name. A close friend who had known him for forty years said—"Mr. Allen was a great personality. It was characteristic of him and of his actions that in 1889 he changed his name, and in 1917 he reverted to his old name. He was a man of wonderful intellectual powers, and belonged to a family with associations with William Pitt and with the Battle of Trafalgar.

"He had hunted with no less than forty-nine different packs of foxhounds in England, as well as staghounds and harriers. He had a family connection with the famous Judge Jefferys. He was a great steeplechaser, and once wagered that he would win every race on the card at a national steeplechase meeting in the Channel Isles. He won the bet.

ON CIRCUIT IN A YACHT

"It used to be said that in his barrister days he attempted at times to go on circuit in a yacht—with the result that he was usually late.

"He was recommended to be appointed to the Commission of Peace by the Earl of Cork, whose descendant is to-day the Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet, which left Weymouth only a day or two before Mr. Allen's death.

"Mr. Allen was a very keen yachtsman and a member of the Royal Dorset Yacht Club for many years. He was a noted horseman, and had driven almost every kind of vehicle. He used to drive a car until quite recently. Only his failing eyesight prevented him from continuing his driving."

DERRY GAS POISONING

INQUEST ON VICTIM

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DERRY, Saturday.

An inquest was held in Derry this evening regarding the death of Mrs. Mary Curry, aged 78, the victim of the gas poisoning accident on Friday morning at Alexandra place, Derry, where she resided with Mrs. Fanny O'Donnell, who was also affected by the escape of gas, but recovered soon after admission to Derry City Infirmary.

The evidence showed that the accident was caused by the breaking of a connection leading from the main into the house. The damage, it was stated, was caused by a thirteen-ton steam roller which was working on the street.

The medical evidence was that death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning caused by inhalation of gas.

Mrs. E. Gordon, a neighbour, who gave evidence of identification, said that the deceased women was a widow and had no relatives. At 1.15 on Friday morning witness went to the deceased woman's shop for candles and found a smell of gas. She turned off the gas at the meter and warned the women of the danger of lighting it again.

James Pomeroy, a bread-server, gave evidence of effecting an entrance to the house through a bedroom window, and finding Mrs. Curry dead in bed, and the other woman unconscious beside her.

Joseph Quigley said that he reported the leakage to the Gas Company on Thursday, but the matter was not attended to, and on the morning after the accident he reported it again.

George Walmsley, manager of the Gas Company, said that the complaint was taken to be one of ordinary gas leakage, and no indication was given that the matter was so serious. Had the urgency of the matter been intimated a squad of men would have been turned out at any time of the night or morning.

The Coroner (Mr. John Tracy) said that if blame attached to anyone it was to the Corporation employés who had used a thirteen-ton steam roller over a pipe only two feet beneath the surface. Gas had been escaping all day, and those men took not the slightest notice of it.

A verdict that death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning from the inhalation of gas was returned.

DEAD ON GOLF COURSE

YOUNG WOMAN MURDERED

BRIGHTON POLICE ARREST MAN

TWO hikers who were crossing the East Brighton Golf Course, high up on the Sussex Downs, about 5 o'clock last evening were startled by two reports. They saw a man running across the Downs.

Racing across the course they found the body of a young woman in a big rain-water tank. There was a bullet wound in her head, and a white scarf was bound tightly around her throat. Nearby was a handbag, and a little distance away a red hat.

Last night scores of uniformed and plain-clothed police carrying torches and storm lanterns were scouring the downs in search of a man whom they wished to question in connection with the affair. The man is stated to have been wearing a light mackintosh.

Shortly after nine o'clock a police car drew up outside the Brighton Borough Police Station, and from it stepped a man accompanied by three detectives.

The East Brighton Golf Club is situated near the main Brighton Rottingdean coast road, high on hills overlooking the sea-front and the piers. "Black Rock," one of Brighton's most famous sights, and the cliffs are within walking distance.

BULLET WOUND IN HEAD

A member of the East Brighton Golf Club said to a reporter:—"I helped to lift the unfortunate woman out of the water at the fifth hole. She was floating, I believe, and the water is about two feet six inches deep. There was a bullet wound in her head, but she had, obviously, been strangled first. There was a scarf round her neck, and she was blue in the face."

"I was told by two men that they had heard two shots, and seen a man running away over the links towards the race course. The woman was about twenty-five years of age, and seemingly of good class. Her hat was some distance away, and her handbag lay beside her. I did not see any revolver. She was dressed in a blue costume, and dark shoes and stockings."

Dr. R. Crothers, another member of the club, said that there was a thick scarf round the woman's neck, tied with a double knot in front. There was a bullet wound behind the right ear.

A resident in the neighbourhood said:—"A woman's screams, followed by two shots, were heard by two men walking over the links just as darkness was falling. They ran to a policeman in the main road, and very soon other officers from the Brighton Police Station arrived. After making a preliminary examination, the police removed the body to the mortuary.

WOMAN IDENTIFIED

Chief Detective-Inspector Peeling made the following statement at midnight:—

"A man has been charged with murder. The police are satisfied as to the identity of the dead woman. She is Edith Constance Drew-Bear, aged about 21."

The Inspector said that the police did not wish to reveal the name of the man who had been charged, and declined also to give an address for the dead woman. It is probable that a man will appear at the Brighton police court this morning.

The Inspector's statement came at the end of a night of intense police activity. Almost every available policeman and detective in the area has been on duty for seven hours, and all police cars have been engaged on the case.

OBITUARY

MR. MARTIN McDONOGH, T.D.

Mr. Martin McDonogh, T.D., one of the best-known business men in the West of Ireland, died in Galway last Saturday after an illness which lasted for several weeks. Aged seventy-eight years, Mr. McDonogh was connected with numerous enterprises in Galway. He was at one time a member of the Governing Body of University College, Galway, and was a director of the Midland Great Western Railway before it was taken over under the amalgamation scheme. He was Chairman of the Galway Bay Steamship Company and a member of the Galway County Council. As head of the firm of Messrs. McDonogh and Sons he employed, perhaps, a greater number of people than any other firm in the Western counties. Almost all the local industries were in his charge. It was he who sponsored the re-opening of the Galway Woollen Mills and the Galway Foundry, both of which became very successful under his direction. He was part owner of the McDonogh Milling and Trading Company, McDonogh Fertilisers, McDonogh Chemical Works, along with the sawmills of Thomas McDonogh and Sons.

Mr. McDonogh's political career started early in the Free State's existence. He was returned for Galway in the Provisional Government, and represented the city until the 1927 election, when he was defeated. In 1931, however, he contested the Galway constituency in the Cumann na nGaedheal interest and was successful, and was again returned at the 1932 election.

He was born in Lettermullen, but while he was a youth he went to Galway with his father and mother. After an education in the local schools he entered Clongowes Wood College, where he had a successful career. He was a familiar figure at most of the Irish turf meetings and owned many racehorses, which were trained by Senator J. J. Parkinson. One of his successes was the winning of the Irish Cambridgeshire last year with Irish Fun. This horse also won the Naas November Handicap at the beginning of the present month. Mr. McDonogh, who is survived by two brothers and a sister, Dr. Michael McDonogh, Mr. Thomas C. McDonogh and Miss Mary Anne McDonogh, had a paralytic stroke two weeks ago. He recovered somewhat, but had a relapse on Saturday.

The first preference figures for Galway at the last general election in January, 1933, were:—Fianna Fail, 45,528; Cumann na nGaedheal, 24,336; and Labour, 3,080.

All through Saturday evening and yesterday thousands of people visited Benmore, Salthill, where the body of Mr. McDonogh lay. At 6 o'clock yesterday evening the remains were removed to St. Joseph's Church, and the funeral will take place this morning, after Requiem Mass at Forthill Cemetery.

Among those who were present at the removal of the body to the church were:—Thomas and Dr. Michael McDonogh (brothers), Miss A. McDonogh (sister), Mrs. Michael McDonogh (sister-in-law), Dr. T. SINN FEIN COURT OFFICIALS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Sunday.

A meeting of district justices, parish justices, registrars and clerks of the old Sinn Fein Courts was held on Saturday at Cork Courthouse. Mr. P. J. Barry, who presided, said that the purpose of the organisation, which was non-political and non sectarian, was to seek remuneration for services willingly given in the face of consequences dangerous to their lives and liberty. When the war was over, and victory won, the only recompense given them was to brush them aside, and put high-salaried men in their positions. That was the reward given to the men who first established Irish law in Ireland.

Mr. W. L. Kelleher said that they should demand their positions back from the Government, and administer Irish law as it should be administered. The Chairman said that they were looking for remuneration in the way of a pension. It was too much to expect what Mr. Kelleher had suggested.

A committee was appointed to take whatever steps may be necessary to achieve the aims of the members.

GELIGNITE IN CHILD'S CASE

CHARGE OF SAFE-BLOWING

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Saturday.

A school-girl's small attache case, containing five-and-a-half sticks of gelignite, a coil of fuse, a box of detonators and a child's dress was deposited on Thursday last at the parcel office of the L.M.S. terminus in Belfast. The case aroused suspicion, and relays of detectives kept it under observation until two men arrived to claim it. They were immediately arrested, and appeared at the Belfast Police Court on Saturday. Their names were Robert Stewart, who stated that he resided in Lonsdale street, Belfast, and Alexander M'Manus, of Durham street, Belfast.

They were charged with being illegally in possession of the gelignite, and with having on the night of November 19-20 broken and entered the office of Thomas A. Fisher, Montgomery street, and stolen a sum of £80 from a safe, the front of which was blown out by explosives.

Detective Sergeant Boyd gave evidence of arrest. He said that on the way to the police station M'Manus made some remark to Stewart. Witness told M'Manus that he must not make any remarks to Stewart, and M'Manus said: "I was only asking him did he know the man we got the ticket off in the boozer."

While Stewart was being searched at the Detective Office he said: "It is hard luck I am in this thing. I know nothing about the stuff in the bag." At that time the attache case had not been opened.

The accused were remanded until Thursday next.

MEMORIALS UNVEILED

Memorials were unveiled in Glasnevin Cemetery, Dublin, yesterday, to four members of the I.R.A. and a member of the Citizen Army. Members of the National Graves Association performed the ceremonies. The memorials were for John Traynor (17), Henry Cole (28), Brendan Donelan (18), Phillip Walsh (28), and John Francis Adams (38).

In an oration, Mr. Sean O'Moore asked if there was any possible doubt that the men who fell in 1916 and in 1922-23 died for nothing less than a Republic for all Ireland, though men who had fought with them were now attempting to tell the Irish people otherwise.

Prayers were said at the graveside, and "The Last Post" was sounded by buglers of Fianna Eireann. The Workers' Union of Ireland Band and the Connolly Pipers accompanied the large parade.

A SUCCESSFUL VENTURE

PANSY OF HAREWOOD, a dog bred by the Princess Royal from Patrick of Ouborough, an animal that was presented to her by the Irish Wolfhound Club of Ireland when she visited this country some years ago, was among the winners at the first all-Ireland Wolfhound Show, which was organised by the club, and held at the premises of Messrs. This show, it was stated, is the only show in the world that is confined to wolfhounds. Its initial venture was most encouraging to the committee in charge, and to the secretary, Mr. J. B. Carter, who worked so hard to make it a success.

The Irish Kennel Club Cup for the best Irish wolfhound in the show, and the Cochrane Cup for the best dog or bitch in the show were won by Mrs. E. Rheumatism

banished by Kruschen Salts

This woman had rheumatism.

Her neighbour called to inquire how she was.

"Still very bad," she was told.

But, before leaving, that neighbour gave some valuable advice. Read this letter:—

"I have been suffering from rheumatism for some considerable time now. I have not been able to wash myself or dress myself. I had to depend on my sister to turn me over in bed until last March a neighbour inquired to know how I was. She was told I was still very bad, and she asked me if I had ever tried Kruschen. I said 'No.' But I was willing to try it as my last resource. After the first small jar I found relief, so I got a large jar. Altogether I have had 4 large jars. I can now walk and wash myself and also do a little household work."

Mrs. A. A., London, S.E.

Stop your rheumatism now! . . . Start on Kruschen to-morrow. It will dissolve away those needle-pointed crystals of uric acid and flush them clean out of your system. Then, if you keep up "the little daily dose," uric acid will never form again.

FREE TRIAL OFFER.

We have distributed to Chemists 10,000 special "GIANT" 1/9 packages. These consist of our regular 1/9 bottle together with a separate trial bottle—sufficient for about one week. Open the trial bottle first. Put it to the test. And then if not entirely satisfied, the regular bottle is still as good as new; take it back. The chemist is authorised to return your 1/9 immediately and without question. You have tried Kruschen free at our expense. What could be fairer?

READING FOR THE BLIND

"Braille Made Easy" is the title of a new publication in course of preparation by the Irish Association for the Blind. This publication, which in part will be a combination of ordinary Roman letters in raised type and Braille, is intended to facilitate the reading of Braille by the blind who have not already learned to read by the sense of touch. Every care and attention is being taken to remove all obstacles in the way of the blind into Braille, and particularly with reference to the subject matter of the lessons, as it is most essential that the Braille student's interest should be sustained by attractive extracts from Irish literature.

Hitherto such publications were printed and published abroad, but as they can now be produced by the Irish Association for the Blind, it will be no longer necessary to import them.

Foyle College.—Mr. William Alexander Cuthbert MacConnell, M.A., graduate of Glasgow University, has been appointed headmaster of Foyle College, Londonderry, in succession to Mr. E. P. Southby, B.A., resigned. The new headmaster is aged 39, and is a son of the late Rev. S. D. McConnell, B.D., a native of Gortnessy. His mother is a daughter of the late Dr. Alexander Cuthbert, of Londonderry. Mr. MacConnell, who is senior assistant master in the department of classics in Hutcheson's Grammar School, Glasgow, and also games' master there, served with the King's Royal Eifles Corps in the Great War and was wounded in France.

JUMPING FARE

Wenceslas gets the Vote for Sutton Hurdle

PROSPECTS for the National Hunt season, which commences in earnest at Birmingham to-day, appear to be particularly rosy. One can always obtain a reliable guide from the attendance figures and the size of fields at those jumping meetings which have been held at frequent intervals during the few weeks before the close of the flat, and there is little doubt that more interest is being taken in this branch of the sport than ever before.

The list of owners has been considerably increased, and the number of good-class performers due to try their luck "over the sticks" is exceptionally high.

The programme at Bromford Bridge offers quite interesting fare, with the Sutton Handicap as the chief feature. Perfective, the top-weight, is in good form, for he has won and been second in his two efforts this season. With 12st. 6lb., however, Mrs. Mundy's seven-year-old has a big task, and I think that Wenceslas, who has 6lb. less to shoulder, is a better proposition.

He beat a useful-class field over two miles and a furlong at Aintree recently in ready fashion, and having also run a few races on the flat will have a pull over most of his rivals on the score of fitness.

Gilgowan, placed in his last three hurdling attempts, and Captain's Choice have chances, but at the weights I prefer Prince du Sang II., who won a similar event at Uttoxeter last month under 11st. 7lb. He was not too lucky subsequently in the race won by Tees Head at Sandown Park.

Tibere, who won the race last year, has a similar burden, 10st. 8lb., but he has not appeared over obstacles this season and will be at a disadvantage with some of his rivals on the score of condition. Pyrus has done plenty of strong work, and might prove the pick of those in the lower half of the scale My vote goes to and only in his absence would I fall back on Prince du Sang II.

The Coleshill Steeplechase is the pick of the events over the bigger obstacles. Go Easy and Avenger possess a splendid turn of speed, and if the going is not too soft they may gallop their rivals off their feet.

Neither, however, will strip in the pink of condition, and I shall recommend who carried 12st. into second place behind Minto Crag (received 23lb.) at Manchester.

HEARTBREAK

and Fair Deal make most appeal in the Three-Year-Old Hurdle. They met at Cheltenham recently, the former winning by five lengths, and I think he will be good enough to score again.

The Aston Handicap Steeplechase may be won by Ben Roberts's useful charge, who ran well at Cheltenham.

VICAR'S CROSS,

SPORTING GOSSIP

Adriatic's Double Victory

Adriatic, who won the Ellesmere Welter Handicap at Manchester on Friday, carried his 5lb. penalty in the Farewell Handicap on Saturday, and was again successful. He was a well-backed second favourite at 4 to 1.

Lord Ellesmere's Yearlings

Lord Ellesmere has sent two of his yearlings to be trained by G. B. Barling at Kremlin House, Newmarket—one by Artist's Proof out of Cadabra, and the other by Plantago out of Attractive.

Why Sirett Did Not Ride

J. Sirett, the well-known middle-weight jockey, was unable to fulfil his riding engagements at Manchester on Saturday, as he caught a cold on Friday, and had to return home to Epsom.

Record Tote Daily Double Pool

The totalisator daily double pool at Manchester on Saturday amounted to £4,145, which is the largest ever recorded in this country. The previous best was £4,037. 10s., taken on Gold Cup day at Ascot last June.

Lingfield Trebles

Mr. J. V. Rank, the owner; G. Evans, his trainer, and J. Fawcus, his jockey, registered a treble at Lingfield Park Races on Saturday with Beachway in the Ashdown Juvenile Hurdle, Southern Hero in the Lingfield Open Handicap Steeplechase, and Peggy Lad in the Winter Handicap Hurdle.

Manchester Double and Treble

J. Jarvis, the trainer, who won the Manchester November Handicap on Saturday with Pip Emma, completed a "double" when Light Tackle was successful in the Worsley Nursery. H. Wragg, the jockey, registered a treble, with Adriatic in the Farewell Handicap, Light Tackle in the Worsley Nursery, and Stop Press in the Final Plate.

Close of Flat Racing Season : Pip Emma's Victory at Manchester on Saturday

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Sunday Night.

WE will begin by clearing up yesterday's residuum before dealing with the broader aspects of the flat racing season. The Manchester November Handicap was won by Lord Rosebery's three-year-old filly, Pip Emma, who had a length and a half and half a length to spare from Jesmond Dene and Free Fare. It was a clear-cut victory, and the filly was the best on the day; but Free Fare, and not Jesmond Dene, should have been second.

I do not know what kink there is in Mr. Ben Warner's horse when he comes to Manchester, or what there is about a certain part of the course that he dislikes; but he did the extraordinary thing of swerving away out of his line at almost exactly the same spot that he did in the race last year, when he had it won and let Jean's Dream come and beat him.

This time the swerve did not cost him the race; for he had come to grips before with Pip Emma, and the filly had shaken him off and beaten him. There was a good deal of mist on the course, but the horses were never entirely out of view, for it was possible to distinguish the colours as they made the two top turns.

Free Fare in Front

First of all, Free Fare had settled down in front of Jean's Dream and Spade, but as they were going into the fog tunnel the white jacket of La Souriciere could be seen in front. When we next saw them clearly they were half-way up the straight, and then Negro could be made out to be in front of Pip Emma, Scarlet River, Jean's Dream and Free Fare.

In another hundred yards or so Pip Emma had taken it up, with Free Fare on the outside of her. Smith rallied up the filly, and she had steadily gained an ascendancy over Free Fare when he ducked. Jesmond Dene had, I think, been a little hampered in his run, and he passed Free Fare and took second place. The placings behind the first three in order were—Robber Chief, Irongrey, Artesian, Jean's Dream, Scarlet River and Thrapston.

I do not suppose there has been an animal in training all the season who is so different as Pip Emma on soft going from what she is on hard. Had it been firm she would probably not have been in the first ten yesterday, or, more probably, would not have started at all. At York and Doncaster on iron ground she was deplorable. At Ayr and Hamilton Park in soft going, and again yesterday, she was good.

Now Goes to Stud

The winner, who now goes to the stud, is by Solario out of Postmark, by Friar Marcus out of Post Haste, by William the Third out of Hasty by Isinglass, and goes back to Semolina.

It was her trainer, Jack Jarvis, who picked her dam out when she won a selling race at Kempton and bought her on behalf of Lord Rosebery for, I think, 600 guineas. In foal to Solario, Lord Rosebery sold her to the late Sir John Rutherford for 2,000 guineas. Then he bought back one of her foals, who is now Pip Emma, and a valuable filly for the stud. Her sister, Speckle, made 6,500 guineas at the December sales.

In spite of the fact that he had done no work for a week, the North remained faithful to Jean's Dream and made him favourite at 7 to 1. He would have been at half that price but for the adverse reports about him.

I mentioned after he ran against Tiberius at Liverpool that Achtenan appeared to have trained off. He made no show in the race, but if he does not prove himself a good colt next season I shall be surprised.

Irongrey ran a good race, but the ground, as I anticipated, was too soft for him to show his best. Artesian does not appear to do as well when he is waited with, as he was here, as when he is allowed to go in front, which he did in the Derby Cup.

One Winner for Richards

Gordon Richards had to be content with one winner, instead of the two a day that he has been delighting his supporters with this week. His success was in the first race of the afternoon, on Major Beatty's Mariegoulde, who won by three lengths from the unregenerate Paddington. The Beresford filly was then sold to Mr. W. J. Kelly for 310 guineas.

Richards's mount, Hidalgo, was favourite for the Farewell Handicap, but was well beaten by Friday's winner, Adriatic. The winner had evidently benefited, instead of otherwise, by his race on the previous afternoon, for he beat Hidalgo easily by a length and a half.

Richards's mount, Hellenize was favourite for the Last Selling Handicap, but was well beaten by the 20 to 1 chance, Paradise Lost and Polyad.

The extra 10lb. was too much for Peggy Lad in the Worsley Nursery, and he was beaten a short-head and a length and a half by Light Tackle and Arenig. Light Tackle, a daughter of Salmon Trout, owned by Mr. Charles Gordon, was the second winner of the afternoon trained by Jack Jarvis, and his two successes enabled him to shift Lawson from third place in the list of winning trainers.

The Last Race

Then we came to the last race of the season, and there was great gambling over this. The biggest of the professional backers accepted every offer that was made to him about Mr. Ranks's new purchase, Cross Wind, whom Weston rode. On the other hand, the connections of Stop Press were betting fearlessly on the half-brother to Arctic Star, and there was little to choose between them in the market, Cross Wind finishing slightly the better favourite.

As soon as we could see them, Stop Press was in front, with his head in his chest, and he won by six lengths and four lengths from Protomartyr and Rising Sun. Cross Wind was floundering at the finish, and this could not have been his true form.

The winner, who is by Defiance, and is owned in partnership by Mr. Sidney McGregor, who bought him in Ireland, and his trainer, Ted Gwilt. This is the horse who ran the Delamere Handicap winner, Tommaok, to a neck at Leicester, and I am sure he is a good one, and will be a winner of long-distance races next season, for staying is his strong point.

By the way, Termourne, the dam of Tommaok, once belonged to the late Mr. Albert Lowry, and it was from his stud that she found her way to France. Termourne's dam, Dusty Girl, was by Nulli Secundus or Jeddah, out of Musty Maid, a sister to L'Abesse de Jourrare, the dam of Desmond.

A Magnificent Crowd

I noted the other day that attendances have been reduced by the adverse weather ever since the buffetings we had on Cambridgeshire day at Newmarket. Though it was misty, it was mild on Saturday, and the crowd was a magnificent one—probably the best I have seen on a last day of the season for some years.

One hopes that, having had such a successful day, the Manchester executive will now see about increasing stake money next season. Every owner and trainer is complaining about the paucity of the stakes at Castle Irwell.

There is no place where so much is done for owners and trainers as at Manchester. In fact, the executive will do anything for you except give you stake money worthy of the importance of the fixture. I venture to say that unless the prizes are increased the meetings there will fall from their high estate.

I think we can safely say that the end of the season under Jockey Club Rules has left racing in a healthy condition, with the brightest prospects for next year. As we know, the yearling sales were splendid. Then the public interest shows no sign of diminishing. The hot, dry summer has, of course, been of great assistance in bringing people out.

Totalisator Takings

I regard the takings of the totalisator as an indication of the strength of public interest, and they have been better than ever. In five years' time I think the totalisator will be a great profit-earning concern. The takings on the daily double yesterday were the largest ever recorded except on one occasion at Ascot.

Though the fine summer brought people to meetings, it nearly drove trainers mad trying to get horses ready on the hard ground. In this respect the year has been almost unique.

There have been three notable things in connection with the season—the successes of the Aga Khan as owner, Frank Butters as trainer, and Blandford as sire. One should also mention Gordon Richards, who, if he did not attain his superhuman figures of last year, when he rode 259 winners, yet finished the season with 212 to his credit—a magnificent record.

A Great Sire

The Aga Khan won in stakes £54,597, of which £51,031 were with horses bred by himself, nearly all in Ireland. Butters's figure is the dazzling one of £88,843 won for his patrons, and Blandford's figure is £70,510 won by his stock, and this excludes the winnings in France of Brantome, the best colt in the country.

I imagine that the Aga Khan has revised his decision to send Felicitation to the stud and decided to keep him in training another year in order to have a cut at the French crack in the Gold Cup. He does not regard the mile and a half race between them in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, which Brantome won, as a true test.

By the way, I should not be entirely surprised if Lord Glanely were also to revise a decision come to some time ago, and put Colombo in training again.

Time is healing the wounds left by his defeat in the Derby, and, if one looks at it dispassionately, Colombo has little to lose and a good deal to gain by being given an opportunity to prove that he should, as I will always believe, have won the Derby.

Windsor Lad's Breeding

It is a great satisfaction that the gallant winner of the Derby and the St. Leger as well, Windsor Lad, is entirely Irish-bred and came from the stud of one Mr. Dan Sullivan, who can be described as relatively a "small" breeder without the resources in highly-bred mares that are at the disposal of studs like those of Lord Derby, Lord Woolavington, Lord Astor and others. This Blandford colt has gone from strength to strength all the season, and every performance he has put up has been a little better than its predecessor.

Blandford's season has been literally epoch-making in the history of breeding. His stock have actually won more than three times as much in stake money as those of Tetratema, who is second on the list. Gainsborough is third, and it is a wonderful tribute to what the dead Colorado might have been to find him fourth in the list with only a few runners, and none of them two-year-olds.

Hard Going Unsuitable

For a sire that went to the stud at a fee of 500 guineas, and then was sold at auction for 47,000 guineas, Solario must be described as having done badly, with the winnings of his stock only £12,729. Although I have never regarded Solario as a super-racehorse or as likely to make a super-sire, this must be said for him: that neither he nor his offspring have ever been able to show their best form on very hard ground, and I imagine that if this had been a rainy season he would have had a good deal more to his credit. We saw what a difference soft going makes to the Solarios in the case of Pip Emma yesterday.

Among trainers who have had a good season, apart from Butters and Marcus Marsh, Captain Boyd-Rochfort is one. Such as Alcazar and Enfield have been splendid winners for the stable. It is a change for Fred. Darling to find himself only seventh on the list, but at no time in the season was he ever enamoured of his lot, and he did not expect a great deal. The best horse in his yard, Easton, was acquired by purchase after the 2,000 Guineas. In point of races won, Dobson Peacock again leads with 89 winners from Middleham.

How the Punter Fared

With regard to that humble, but important, person, the punter, he has not done so badly; for form has worked out well through the year, and varied little when the going changed. Although favourites have not always won the big handicaps, these have generally gone to fancied horses, and there have been none of those disconcerting upsets that benefit the ring only. Indeed, the members of the ring have had many better seasons than the one that ended yesterday.

We begin the National Hunt season proper at Birmingham to-morrow, and if the number of jumpers in training is any criterion there will be plenty of animation about it.

A few ideas about to-morrow's events are that WENCESLAS will win the Sutton Handicap Hurdle, HEARTBREAK the Three-Year-Old Hurdle, and AVENGER the Coleshill Steeplechase. I expect to see Avenger prove himself a real good one and up to good Grand National standards this winter and spring.

IRVINE'S SUPERB GOAL

Waterford's Half-Backs save a Point at Tolka Park

DRUMCONDRA ..... 1 WATERFORD 1

AT Tolka Park yesterday Irvine scored for Waterford, and Kavanagh (for Drumcondra) equalised.

It was a splendid match, the quality of the football being much superior to that of most of the local games of the season.

Drumcondra were lucky to save a point, although they played a virile and skilful game. They were speedy and well balanced, but had not so much of the play as their opponents. Waterford gave a fine display. Not only was the forward play good, the half-backs were sound, and the backs stern and strenuous.

The fault with both teams was that their finishing was not in keeping with their outfield play, and although Drumcondra missed some simple chances Waterford frittered away a greater number.

It was a grim struggle in the first half, and Waterford just about deserved their interval lead. Irvine had missed a penalty by kicking the ball straight at Flynn, but after half-an-hour's play he secured the ball near midfield and rounded four opponents before sending it past Flynn for a superb goal.

In the early stages of the second half the play was rather dull. For a short space, during which Kavanagh secured the equaliser by quickly snapping up a chance, the Waterford defence was unsettled. The play gradually livened up, and it became a stern duel to the end, with the defences often hard pressed by forwards who fought hard for the deciding goal.

If Waterford had played a more open game when near to goal they might have won. Their close passing told against them, as they sometimes gave the opposition too much time. Still they were a clever side, without much weakness in any position.

Their great strength was at half-back, where Sharkey was particularly good. Irvine and Upton were the best forwards. Kelly and Tighe were brilliant backs, and Power made some capital saves.

Little was seen of Gallagher (Queen's Park), who was making his first appearance for Drumcondra, but the rest of the forward line played well, with McCosh the driving force. Byrne and Hutchinson were excellent half-backs. Lennox and Moore were reliable backs, while Flynn was again a sound goalkeeper.

Drumcondra—Flynn; Lennox, Moore; P. Cameron, Byrne, F. Hutchinson; Vandeleur, Kavanagh, Gallagher, McCosh, Meehan.

FIRST LEAGUE DEFEAT FOR DOLPHIN

BOHEMIANS ..... 2 DOLPHIN 1

At Dalymount Park, on Saturday. The scorers were Horlacher and Ellis for Bohemians, Watt for Dolphin.

Bohemians accomplished their finest performance of the season by inflicting on Dolphin the first defeat sustained by the latter in the League so far. In a keenly-contested game Dolphin played very clever football, but their forwards found Bohemians's defence at the top of its form, and, though Rogers, Squires, Atkins and Carroll played extremely well, they found themselves up against resolute opponents.

Andrews and W. McGuire have not given a better display for Bohemians this season. The former completely "bottled up" Rogers, while McGuire, by splendid anticipation, averted more than one apparently certain score. Dolphin, who introduced Carroll, the former Dundalk player, at outside-right, played extremely clever football, but time after time their attacks were broken up by keen tackling.

Bohemians played with a considerable degree of dash, and though Ellis, at centre-forward, found the Dolphin defence a sound one, he contrived to get a score, even though it was of a lucky nature. Horlacher was the winners' outstanding forward, and Jordan, on the left wing, gave a very fine display.

Eleven minutes after the start Horlacher gave Bohemians the lead after Doyle, in attempting to clear, had put the ball on to his toes. Before half-time a free kick by McGuire reached Ellis, who had little difficulty in netting, after Pinkerton had fumbled the original shot. Dolphin put in a strong finish in the second half, and Watt, from far out, shot well past Cannon, but in a good game the winners merited their success.

Bohemians—H. Cannon; W. McGuire, A. Ronan; P. O'Kane, P. Andrews, A. Maguire; J. Menton, J. Buchanan, P. Ellis, A. Horlacher, W. Jordan.

Dolphin—Pinkerton; Collins, Doyle; Gallagher, Watt, Kendrick; Carroll, Atkins, Rogers, Squires, Paterson.

SLIGO OUT OF LUCK AT CORK

CORK ..... 1 SLIGO ROVERS 1

Cork were very fortunate to save a point in their League game with Sligo Rovers at The Mardyke yesterday, the visitors dominated the play from start to finish, and had the finishing of their forwards been more accurate they must have won well. As it was they got the ball into the net on no fewer than four occasions, but only one of the scores was adjudged to be valid. Sligo's ill-luck lay in the fact that two of the scores were not helped by the offside position of the particular offender.

The visitors' unorthodox methods had the effect of completely demoralising the Corkmen. Sligo swung the ball about freely and their kick and rush tactics served them very well until they were within shooting range. It was in this department that the weakness of the former was shown, and numbers of great opportunities were simply thrown away. Apart from this their display was quite impressive, and they revealed themselves as a far speedier combination than the Corkmen. McGee was brilliant during a few busy spells that he had, and he was covered by a splendid pair of backs in Westley and Mullin. The halves, McCann and Fallon, had no superiors on view, and Smith was the smartest of the forwards.

Cork included Johnny Paton, but their former captain was only a shadow of what he was last season. Pringle, the ex-Waterford centre-half, was also included, and played soundly, without being in any way brilliant. Cork's best work was done in defence, where Harrington and Burke kept the opposing forwards at bay during most of the game. Connolly was the only half-back who compared favourably with those on the opposite side.

All the scoring was done in the first half. Ten minutes after the start Connolly gave Cork the lead with a brilliant effort from nearly twenty yards out. Sligo got on terms twenty minutes later when, after G. McDaid had driven against the cross-bar, Smith drove the rebound well out of Harrington's reach.

Cork—Harrington; Buckle, Burke; O'Brien, Pringle, Connolly; McGonigle, Paton, Lynch, Neville, O'Keeffe.

Sligo Rovers—McGee; Westley, Mullin; Fallon, McCann, Gormley; Smith, Callaghan, G. McDaid, J. McDaid, Monahan.

A GLUT OF GOALS AT BRAY

ST. JAMES'S GATE 6

BRAY UNKNOWNS 3

At Carlisle Ground, Bray, yesterday. A. Rigby (3), Byrne, Martini and Hoey (pen.) scored for St. James's Gate, and Bellew, Rorrison and Neary (pen.) for Bray.

In the speed and more accurate shooting of their forwards lay the secret of St. James's Gate's well-deserved win. With twenty-four minutes gone they were two goals down, their defence showing decided signs of shakiness, while their attempts to score were poor by comparison to the brilliant open play of the Bray forwards, but when they settled down, under the skilful leadership of A. Rigby, the visitors not only made good the deficit, but at the interval led by 4-3, and, in spite of the sound defence of the Bray backs, they added two more.

In defence there was little between the teams, and in the middle line there was no better player than O'Boyle, who not only assumed the rôle of forward on occasions, but was the biggest obstacle in the path of Byrne and Martini, the fastest and most dangerous of the visitors' forwards.

J. Murray and Lennon put in good work in the St. James's Gate half-back line, and compared favourably with Neary and Buchanan of Bray. In the front line St. James's Gate held all the advantage. There the honours went to A. Rigby, who scored three fine goals, kept the line together after their initial reverse, and was always accurate in his well-timed passes. Somers put in useful work at times on the left.

On the Bray side Hannon and Bellew were the pick of a rather disjointed lot, although Rorrison tried hard to keep them together in the second half. Generally speaking the inside players were ineffective in their shooting, despite their clever footwork at times.

Bray Unknowns—Whelan; Harkin, J. Rigby; Buchanan, Neary, O'Boyle; Bellew, Hunt, Rorrison, Rudd, Hannon.

St. James's Gate—Webster; Hoey, O. Murray; Simpson, Lennon, J. Murray; Byrne, Martini, A. Rigby, Somers, Smith.

NO GOALS SCORED AT DUNDALK

DUNDALK 0

SHAMROCK ROVERS 0

Plenty of hard and fast football was seen at Dundalk yesterday, when Shamrock Rovers took a point from Dundalk in their Free State League game. The splendid goalkeeping of both Behan (Rovers) and McMahon (Dundalk) was a feature of the game. Dundalk brought on two new wingers in Gaughran and Mills, and the former, who played on the right wing, was one of the successes of the side.

With the wind behind them Rovers were the better side in the first half, but their inside forwards were unable to beat down a good defence, in which J. Godwin was splendid. Three times early on Leonard cleverly got through, but twice he shot weakly outside, and on the third occasion crashed the ball against the bar. In a stern Dundalk raid, started by T. Godwin, Behan was beaten by a powerful shot from Peter Donnelly, but again the woodwork saved a goal.

Strong play by the Dundalk half-back line kept the Rovers out for most of the second half. McCourt, who was inside right for Dundalk, got a splendid chance to open the scoring, but shot wide when well placed, and Williams did the same at the other end. P Donnelly was a strong centre-forward, and his speed kept Mathews busy. From one of his drives Behan was unable to take the ball, but Gaskins nipped in and cleared off the line. A draw was a fair result. Teams:—

Dundalk—McMahon; O'Neill, Powell; J. Goodwin, T. Goodwin, Hirst; Gaughran, McCourt, P. Donnelly, Richards and Mills.

MUNSTER FORWARDS PREVAIL

Ulster Beaten in Lively Game : Substitute Halves Make Good

MUNSTER ..... 16 ULSTER 13

IN a match which was one of the most attractive of the series played between the provinces, Munster beat Ulster at Ravenhill ground, Belfast, on Saturday by 2 goals and 2 tries to 2 goals and 1 try.

The result was another indication of the advance of the game in the Southern province in recent years. Munster just about deserved to win, and though all their scores were got by means of back movements, it is the forwards who actually deserve chief credit for the victory. They packed in superb style in the scrummages, got low down, put the shove on at the right time and so delivered the ball at the base of the scrummage as to make matters easy for the two substitute half-backs. To the latter's credit it must be said that they took every chance given to them and, in fact, played like old hands in representative games. Neither had been thought good enough even for one of the trial Munster teams. O'Brien, in the outside position, was resourceful, and varied his play in such a way as to keep the opposing backs guessing, while O'Driscoll, though seldom attempting anything beyond plying his outside with the ball, played well enough to merit further recognition. The best back on the winning side, however, was Cagney, who, by strong straight running, scored one try, and made another. He was far better than Reardon, who was capped for Ireland last season. Both the wing three-quarters made useful runs at times, but were shown up badly in defence on a couple of occasions. Langan was far too slow in getting about the field in a match which was carried on at a particularly fast pace. The best of a good Munster pack were Laycock, Tobin, Bardon and Russell.

A PROMISING WING

On the Ulster side, there were two backs who impressed much—namely, McCombe, the right wing three-quarter, and A. F. Turner. The former is a strong runner, who with good feeding from his inside should be a prolific score-getter, but on Saturday he did not often get a reasonable chance. Turner for a good part of the game was handicapped by the inability of his forwards to get the ball, but when the game turned in his favour he was clever and elusive, and combined well with his partner, Adrain, who also gave a good display. Bamber, the old Trinity wing, was also very prominent at times, and seems to have improved since joining Malone. Both Cole and Stewart were moderate in the centre, and were much to blame for not tackling their men in the early stages. Malcolmson, while doing some useful fielding and kicking, did not impress as a full-back likely to achieve international distinction. Walker, Glasgow, Irwin, Megaw and Ross were about the best forwards. A particularly pleasing feature of the game was the excellent refereeing of Mr. D. C. Pickeman, whose decisions were invariably correct and promptly delivered.

AN EARLY SCORE

The Munster forwards from the opening were the better scrummagers, and, invariably getting possession, they sent the ball back sharply to O'Driscoll, who was always able to get it away cleanly to O'Brien. After ten minutes' play a scrummage in the Ulster half led to the first score. O'Driscoll whipped the ball out to O'Brien, who cut through smartly and passed on to Reardon, and the latter sent Lane over for a try in good position for Langan to convert. Malcolmson was at fault in the subsequent play, and Ulster were in difficulties, but a couple of good runs by Adrain pulled them out of trouble. McCombe, the Ulster right wing, was next prominent in a fine run, in which he completely beat O'Connor, but his cross kick was intercepted. Ulster were fighting hard for a score, and were soon rewarded, a movement, started by Cole, in which Stewart joined, ending in Bamber eluding Lane to cross for a try, which Malcolmson just failed to convert. Munster returned to the attack on resuming, Reardon forcing Malcolmson to carry over. Shortly afterwards the Munster forwards again sent the ball back sharply from the scrummage, and after O'Driscoll and O'Brien had handled, Cagney went right through in the centre to score under the posts, but Langan missed the easiest of kicks. Malcolmson was off the field injured for a few minutes, Ross replacing him as full-back. Again the Munster forwards, by quick heeling, paved the way for a score, and Cagney showed great thrust in making the opening for O'Connor to cross the line and go round to register a try in good position for Cagney to convert.

EXCITING SECOND HALF

Starting the second half with a lead of 13 points to 3, Munster appeared to be in a safe position, but the Ulster forwards, rallying in fine style, now began to give their backs more of the ball, and Bamber was a bit unlucky not to have scored off an opening made for him by Turner. Later, Adrain had a good chance to walk in for a score himself, but passed instead, and, generally speaking, Ulster was getting on top. Cole was little astray with a penalty kick, and almost immediately afterwards, from a cross kick by Bamber, Irwin followed up and scored, and Cole converted. It was all Ulster's game now, and when Adrain sent Walker in under the posts and Cole converted, the score was 13 points all. It was at this point that Munster really pulled out their best. Barry and P. Powell each went off injured, but returned with head bandages, and the forwards, playing with renewed determination, began to take command again. Play was worked up to the Ulster line, and O'Connor, taking a pass direct from O'Driscoll, cut in between the opposing centres for a very clever try. Cagney missed the goal kick, and though Ulster made strenuous efforts to get on terms again, the score was unaltered when the final whistle went. Teams:—

MUNSTER—Full-back, D. J. Langan (Garryowen and Clontarf); three-quarters, J. J. O'Connor (U.C.C.), J. Cagney (Constitution), J. Reardon (do.), D. Lane (U.C.C.); half-backs, R. F. O'Driscoll (Sunday's Well), B. O'Brien (U.C.C.); forwards, J. Russell (U.C.D.), J. Laycock (do.), P. Powell (do.), D. Bergin (do.), M. Powell (Sunday's Well), J. Tobin (Young Munsters), M. E. Megaw (Instonians and Richmond (capt.), S. K. Neill (Instonians), W. McC. Ross (Queen's and Milltown), S. Walker (Instonians).

THIRD SUCCESSIVE WIN FOR PALMERSTON

PALMERSTON... 12 MONKSTOWN..... 5

Having beaten Old Wesley and Bective Rangers, Palmerston brought off their third consecutive victory in three weeks by beating Monkstown at Sydney Parade by 2 penalty goals and 2 tries to a goal from a try.

Monkstown started strongly, but Palmerston gradually took the upper hand, and near the interval Mullins landed a couple of penalty goals. Monkstown re-started strongly, but missed a couple of scores, and then Palmerston put in a sustained pressure, in which Hudson grasped the opportunity to score a couple of good tries, which Mullins failed to convert. In a Monkstown invasion Mullan scored, and Wall added the points, but Palmerston were aggressive at the end.

Hughes played a steady game at back for the winners, and Dowds and Redmond were enterprising centres, and Balch and Nicholls ran well. Connolly worked the scrums smartly, and the best forwards were Hudson, Mullins, Thompson, and O'Driscoll. Williams was very safe at back for Monkatown, and kicked a long ball. Salmon and Wall were the best of the three-quarters, Murphy and Musgrove (late of Instonians) useful halves, and Tighe, Maher, Mullan, and O'Reilly the best of a hard-trying pack. Teams:—

Monkstown—M. Williams; P. H. C. Salmon, D. Wall, J. J. Corrigan, H. Arigho; S. G. Murphy, G. Musgrove; P. L. Tighe, W. Maher, A. P. Kinneally, F. Fox, C. O'Connor, S. C. Mullan, E. O. Knapp, M. A. J. O'Reilly.

Palmerston—C. J. Hughes; J. Balch, A. Redmond, F. Dowds, G. E. Nicholls; C. Connolly, R. J. Walsh; D. M. Hudson, J. W. H. Mullins, J. H. Thompson, P. O'Driscoll, W. Baker, D. Walsh, J. Eustace, E. J. Flynn.

HIGH-SCORING GAME WON BY DOLPHIN

DOLPHIN..... 22 U.C.C. SELECTED 14

At Cork, Dolphin defeated University College, Cork, Selected by 2 goals and 4 tries to 1 goal and 3 tries.

With seven of their men away in Belfast representing Munster and one or two others on the injured list, University College were glad to avail of the services of some players from Sunday's Well for this friendly match. Naturally, the students' fifteen was not an altogether happy combination, but they put up a very good show, and it was only in the second half that Dolphin's superiority really told. The winners, who were six points in arrears at the interval, carried the scrums all through the second half, and in some fast, open play the backs cleared off the arrears. Dolphin crossed the line five times in this period, as against one score by the College.

IMPRESSIVE PLAY BY UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

U.C.D. 15

ALDERSHOT SERVICES 3

University College reached their best form against Aldershot Services at Aldershot on Saturday, and fully deserved their win by a goal, a dropped goal and two tries to a try.

The University were much the smarter behind the scrum. Their forwards, although shoving strongly, could claim little advantage in the set scrummage, but whenever these went in their favour Barry always got the ball away cleanly. The three-quarters ran straight, handled cleanly, and the tackling generally was keen, quick and sure. Murphy, who came in at left centre for B. McCormack, scored a try himself, and made the opening for Scott to get another. A. Bailey, the other centre, was in particularly good form. The forwards did a lot of effective work in the loose, and Jennings, Glynn, Boland and Hayes were outstanding.

The University were much superior early in the game, Cowey, McCall and Duggan defending well for the Services. Barry went over for a try, although tackled on the line, A. Bailey's kick failing. The Services improved after this, but the Irish line was rarely threatened seriously. A. Bailey raced through from his own half, but when a few yards from the Aldershot line was overhauled by McCall, who brought him down. Cowey got over for Services early in the second half, but Cottell failed to goal. University took command again, and a beautiful move on the left wing enabled Murphy to cross, Scott missing a simple kick. J. Bailey then dropped a good goal. The University pressed strongly towards the close, and Scott went over in the corner for A. Bailey to land a beautiful kick.

TO-DAY'S FIXTURE.

University of London v. University College, Dublin, Motspur Park, London.

A NARROW WIN FOR WANDERERS

WANDERERS 5

BECTIVE RANGERS 3

After a hard-fought game at Donnybrook, Wanderers defeated Bective Rangers by 1 goal (from a try) to 1 try, and thus maintained their unbeaten record. There was very little between the teams, but Wanderers had just that little superiority forward which enabled them to come out on top.

E. C. Ridgeway was the best of the Wanderers' rear division, and his try was the culmination of a clever cut through. A. C. Preston was often in the picture, and T. J. Keegan had some strong runs on the wing. A. C. King and R. B. Wellwood combined well at half, and F. W. Williamson, at full-back, came through a busy time with credit. The forwards, all hard workers, were best represented by C. R. Graves, C. O'N. Wallis and L. Halligan.

D. P. Morris gave a splendid display in the last line of defence for Bective. He kicked with fine length and tackled soundly. J. Doyle and D. G. Magee were prominent wing men, and the latter showed much determined running. P. Bailey has been seen to better advantage. Neither J. J. Fitzsimons nor Des. O'Connor impressed greatly at half-back, and the former did not get the ball away as sharply as usual. S. Deering, Carroll and H. J. Doyle were the pick of the forwards.

Wanderers had much the better of the opening half, and led by five points at the interval. Their score came midways through the period, when Preston, intercepting a pass intended for Bailey, raced away, and sent to Ridgeway, who cut through for a try, which he converted. Both sides had strong spells of attack in the second half, but the only score came to Bective. A strong pressure by the forwards was rewarded when Hooper worried over for a try, but Doyle's effort to place a goal was not successful. Teams:—

Bective Rangers—D. P. Morris; J. Doyle, P. Bailey, J. L. Scannell, D. G. Magee; J. J. Fitzsimons, Des. O'Connor; G. Carroll, S. Deering, H. J. Doyle, J. Dunne, J. Hooper, J. Griffen, A. Wade, T. J. Little.

Wanderers—F. W. Williamson; J. T. Keegan, A. C. Preston, E. C. Ridgeway, F. Webster; A. W. King, R. B. Wellwood; D. Bardon, C. R. Graves, L. Halligan, H. Murray, W. J. McCormick, L. Ross, N. B. Smellie, C. O'N. Wallis.

Referee—Mr. J. L. McLoughlin.

CLONTARF SUPERIOR ALL THROUGH

CLONTARF ..... 22 OLD WESLEY 0

At Castle avenue, Clontarf gained a very easy victory over Old Wesley by 3 goals (1 penalty) and 3 tries to nothing. Clontarf were the superior side all through in every department of the game, and fully deserved the 22 points scored.

Neither full-back was impressive, but McGowan was the better of the two. Gleeson, who had the distinction of scoring four tries, was ever ready to take an opportunity and showed a good turn of speed. Martin, on the other wing, put in a few strong runs. Morgan was splendid and stood out clear above everyone, and F. Moran was a success as out-half. Tyson, L. Moran and Glass were often noticeable in a good pack. The Old Wesley backs were best served by Prescott and Lambert. The halves—Patton and McConnell—defended well, and Glenn, Warwick and Scott were conspicuous in the front rank.

The first score was cleverly engineered by Morgan, who cut through, and sent out to Gleeson, who scored, McHugh just failing to convert. Then from a penalty close to halfway L. Moran landed a great goal. Enright was injured and off the field for a while, and L. Moran, who was taken from the pack to play on the wing, kicked across and Gleeson, gathering smartly, scored again, McHugh adding the points. Morgan then sent F. Moran away, and he passed to Martin, who got over. L. Moran's kick going wide. It was not till near the end of the second half that Clontarf scored again, Gleeson crossing twice, one of his tries being converted by McHugh. Teams:—

Clontarf—T. R. McGowan; T. J. Gleeson, S. P. McHugh, G. Enright, J. Martin; G. J. Morgan, F. A. Moran; M. J. O'Dwyer, P. H. Mooney, J. Glass, J. P. Cavanagh, J. Tyson, L. A. Moran, J. J. Madigan, J. W. Mays.

Old Wesley—J. D. Drawer; F. J. Mark, D. G. Walker, W. R. Prescott, R. W. Lambert; P. G. Patton, J. McConnell; D. E. Glenn, F. Warwick, W. G. Taylor, H. Martin, W. J. Collier, G. H. McIlroy, J. W. Keegan, H. G. Scott.

LANSDOWNE WIN IN THE LAST MINUTE

LANSDOWNE .... 13 TRINITY 8

With less than a minute to go the scores in this match at Lansdowne road were level. Trinity were attacking strongly, but the position was lost when E. G. Parke just failed to drop a goal. Immediately after the drop-out Lansdowne backs got moving. P. J. Quinn and E. O'D. Davy gained many yards, and the latter gave J. J. Mooney a clear run in from the 25. The scorer converted, and Lansdowne won by two goals and a try to a goal and a try.

Though Lansdowne were a shade more dangerous in their fewer attacking movements, it was a game in which the result might very easily have been reversed. Trinity had to field a number of substitutes for prominent players. The strength and weakness of the Trinity backs was in their passing. They brought off a number of fine movements, in which the ball was handled quickly and cleverly, and the centres made frequent cuts through, but, by occasionally passing blindly, they played right into the hands of the opposition, who were fully alive to the possibilities of these gifts.

E. O'D. Davy was in splendid attacking form for the winners, and had a great deal to do with the success of his side. His speed does not seem to be in any way impaired, and he used his swerve, side-step and hand-off with telling effect. P. J. Quinn also had a very good match, and J. J. Mooney again proved a clever opportunist. C. Murphy, at full-back, gave a thoroughly satisfying display, and in a fine pack T. Synnott, T. P. Hogan, J. Robertson and the Rev. St. J. Pike were very prominent.

The outstanding back on the Trinity side was J. H. Jewell. He was very elusive, and sped through the Lansdowne defence with amazing ease. J. C. Martin, the other centre, was also very good. C. V. Boyle and W. P. Roper both ran with plenty of spirit on the wings, but had not quite enough pace. R. H. Martin fielded and kicked beautifully with both feet at full-back. S. W. McCall, at scrum-half, was inclined to chance his reverse pass too often, and E. G. Parke opened up well, but was not quite at his best. W. A. Pike, P. Berney and G. B. Jackson were the best of the forwards.

A try by Robertson, converted by Mooney, for Lansdowne, was the only score at the interval. In an inspired period Parke and Boyle got very spectacular tries for Trinity, Jewell once converting. An intercept gave Davy a try for Lansdowne, and the final score has been referred to.

Lansdowne—G. Murphy; E. J. Lightfoot, J. J. Mooney, E. O'D. Davy, R. W. Fox; P. Quinn, T. A. O'Reilly; F. Conroy, T. P. Synnott, Rev. St. J. Pike, T. P. Hogan, J. Robertson, M. K. Ryan, W. Sutherland, G. McDermott.

Dublin University—R. H. Martin; W. P. Roper, J. H. Jewell, J. C. Martin, C. V. Boyle; E. G. Parke, S. W. McCall; B. Berney, W. A. Pike, G. B. Hicks, G. B. Jackson, L. McCaughey, M. Graham, C. W. Good, J. C. McNeilly.

S. L. WAIDE UNLIKELY TO PLAY AGAIN

BOHEMIANS ..... 6 GARRYOWEN..... 3

Bohemians and Garryowen engaged in a Munster Senior League game at Limerick on Saturday. An even game resulted in a win for Bohemians by 2 tries to 1. A. P. Harris made the opening for Bohemians' first score with a kick which was followed by O'Dwyer, who ran in for a try. O'Halloran equalised for Garryowen in the second half, and Hall got the winning try for Bohemians. All the goal-kicks failed.

HEAVY SCORING IN IRISH CUP FINAL

PEMBROKE OUTCLASSED BY CLONARD

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Alteration in the conditions of the final of the Irish Cup—by having the venue outdoor and indoor in alternate years—is likely to be discussed at the next annual general meeting of the Irish Amateur Swimming Association.

Under the rules the competition is played indoors, and, with the miserable provision of enclosed pools in Dublin, our local clubs are heavily handicapped, and have not nearly so good a record of success as the Northern teams.

This year's competition will lend support to those who consider a change desirable. Four weeks ago the Pembroke team met the holders, Clonard, at the Pembroke Avenue Baths, Belfast, and had the better of a drawn game. The Dublin team had room to move in the Belfast baths. In the crowded conditions of Tara street, with lack of depth as a further handicap, the team was outclassed on Saturday in the replay.

Clonard were expected to win the replay because of the effect of the altered conditions. They were not, however, regarded as likely to have the easy passage they had.

In winning for the fifth successive year, Clonard left no doubt as to the wide margin between their standard of play and that of the best of the Dublin clubs. In the type of game called for by such an arena Clonard are easily outstanding. In every phase and in each position they had the measure of Pembroke from the start.

Clonard had two changes from the side that drew in Belfast, W. McManus coming in at back and Jenkins forward. Each change made for strength, and the side was fitter and faster than in the drawn game in the North.

McClure was the best player in the baths, scoring five times, and having the time-keeper's whistle at the end of the first half anticipating another
